Issue No: 2009
Case No: [REDACTED]
Load No: [REDACTED]

HEARING DECISION

This matter is before the undersigned Administrative Law Judge pursuant to MCL 400.9 and MCL 400.37 upon claimant's request for a hearing. After due notice, a hearing was held on September 25, 2008. Claimant appeared and testified. Claimant was represented by [REDACTED] of L&S Associates. Following the hearing, the record was open for the receipt of additional evidence. Additional documents were received and reviewed.

ISSUE

Did the Department of Human Services (DHS or department) properly determine that claimant is not "disabled" for purposes of the Medical Assistance (MA-P) program?

FINDINGS OF FACT

The Administrative Law Judge, based upon the competent, material and substantial evidence on the whole record, finds as material fact:

(1) On January 29, 2008, an application was filed on claimant's behalf for MA-P benefits. The application requested MA-P retroactive to October of 2007.

(2) On March 31, 2008, the department denied claimant's application for benefits based upon the belief that claimant did not meet the requisite disability criteria.

(3) On June 26, 2008, the hearing request was filed to protest the department's determination.

(4) Claimant, age 51, has a high school education.

(5) Claimant last worked in October of 2007 as a [REDACTED] person. Claimant has had no other relevant work experience.

(6) Claimant has a history of coronary artery disease with mild myocardial infarction and stent placement.

(7) Claimant was hospitalized October 16 through October 24, 2007 as a result of non-ST elevated myocardial infarction, two-vessel disease. He was found to have severe coronary artery disease and a coronary artery bypass graft surgery was planned.

(8) Claimant was hospitalized December 17, through December 22, 2007, when he underwent coronary artery bypass grafting x3. Post surgery, his ejection fraction was found to be approximately 30 percent.

(9) Claimant suffers from severe congestive heart failure, coronary artery disease, insulin dependent diabetes mellitus with neuropathy, hypertension, and hyperlipidemia.

(10) Claimant has severe limitations upon his ability to walk, stand, lift, push, pulling, reach, carry, and handle items. Claimant's limitations have lasted or are expected to last 12 months or more.

(11) Claimant's complaints and allegations concerning his impairments and limitations, when considered in light of all objective medical evidence, as well as the record as a whole, reflect an individual who is so impaired as to be incapable of engaging in any substantial gainful activity on a regular and continuing basis.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Medical Assistance (MA) program is established by Title XIX of the Social Security Act and is implemented by Title 42 of the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR). The Department of Human Services (DHS or department) administers the MA program pursuant to MCL 400.10, et seq., and MCL 400.105. Department policies are found in the Program Administrative Manual (PAM), the Program Eligibility Manual (PEM) and the Program Reference Manual (PRM).

Federal regulations require that the department use the same operative definition for "disabled" as used for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) under Title XVI of the Social Security Act. 42 CFR 435.540(a).

"Disability" is:

...the inability to do any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than 12 months
... 20 CFR 416.905

In determining whether an individual is disabled, 20 CFR 416.920 requires the trier of fact to follow a sequential evaluation process by which current work activity, the severity of the impairment(s), residual functional capacity, and vocational factors (i.e., age, education, and work experience) are assessed in that order. When a determination that an individual is or is not disabled can be made at any step in the sequential evaluation, evaluation under a subsequent step is not necessary.

First, the trier of fact must determine if the individual is working and if the work is substantial gainful activity. 20 CFR 416.920(b). In this case, claimant is not working. Therefore, claimant may not be disqualified for MA at this step in the sequential evaluation process.

Secondly, in order to be considered disabled for purposes of MA, a person must have a severe impairment. 20 CFR 416.920(c). A severe impairment is an impairment which significantly limits an individual's physical or mental ability to perform basic work activities. Basic work activities mean the abilities and aptitudes necessary to do most jobs. Examples of these include:

- (1) Physical functions such as walking, standing, sitting, lifting, pushing, pulling, reaching, carrying or handling;
- (2) Capacities for seeing, hearing, and speaking;
- (3) Understanding, carrying out, and remembering simple instructions;
- (4) Use of judgment;
- (5) Responding appropriately to supervision, co-workers and usual work situations; and
- (6) Dealing with changes in a routine work setting. 20 CFR 416.921(b).

The purpose of the second step in the sequential evaluation process is to screen out claims lacking in medical merit. Higgs v. Bowen 880 F2d 860, 862 (6th Cir, 1988). As a result, the department may only screen out claims at this level which are “totally groundless” solely from a medical standpoint. The Higgs court used the severity requirement as a “de minimus hurdle” in the disability determination. The de minimus standard is a provision of a law that allows the court to disregard trifling matters.

In this case, claimant has presented the required medical data and evidence necessary to support a finding that he has significant physical limitations upon his ability to perform basic work activities such as walking, standing, lifting, pushing, pulling, reaching, carrying, or handling. Medical evidence has clearly established that claimant has an impairment (or combination of impairments) that has more than a minimal effect on claimant’s work activities. See Social Security Rulings 85-28, 88-13, and 82-63.

In the third step of the sequential consideration of a disability claim, the trier of fact must determine if the claimant’s impairment (or combination of impairments) is listed in Appendix 1 of Subpart P of 20 CFR, Part 404. This Administrative Law Judge finds that the claimant’s medical record will not support a finding that claimant’s impairment(s) is a “listed impairment” or equal to a listed impairment. See Appendix 1 of Subpart P of 20 CFR, Part 404, Part A. Accordingly, claimant cannot be found to be disabled based upon medical evidence alone. 20 CFR 416.920(d).

In the fourth step of the sequential consideration of a disability claim, the trier of fact must determine if the claimant's impairment(s) prevents claimant from doing past relevant work. 20 CFR 416.920(e). It is the finding of this Administrative Law Judge, based upon the medical evidence and objective, physical and psychological findings, that claimant is not capable of the walking, standing, lifting, or carrying required by his past employment. Claimant has presented the required medical data and evidence necessary to support a finding that he is not, at this point, capable of performing such work.

In the fifth step of the sequential consideration of a disability claim, the trier of fact must determine if the claimant's impairment(s) prevents claimant from doing other work. 20 CFR 416.920(f). This determination is based upon the claimant's:

- (1) residual functional capacity defined simply as "what can you still do despite your limitations?" 20 CFR 416.945;
- (2) age, education, and work experience, 20 CFR 416.963-.965; and
- (3) the kinds of work which exist in significant numbers in the national economy which the claimant could perform despite his/her limitations. 20 CFR 416.966.

See Felton v DSS 161 Mich. App 690, 696 (1987). Once claimant reaches Step 5 in the sequential review process, claimant has already established a prima facie case of disability. Richardson v Secretary of Health and Human Services, 735 F2d 962 (6th Cir, 1984). At that point, the burden of proof is on the state to prove by substantial evidence that the claimant has the residual functional capacity for substantial gainful activity.

Claimant has a history of myocardioinfarction with stent placement. He suffered a myocardial infarction in October of 2007 and was found to have severe coronary artery disease. Claimant underwent a coronary artery bypass graft x3 in December of 2007. Post surgery his ejection fraction was found to be approximately 30%. On January 14, 2008, claimant's treating cardiologist, Dr. Dupre, diagnosed claimant with coronary artery disease, diabetes mellitus, hyperlipidemia, and hypertension. The cardiologist opined that claimant was limited to standing or walking less than two hours in an eight-hour workday. The cardiologist indicated that claimant has severe cardiomyopathy with an ejection fraction of 10% which is symptomatic with normal activity. The physician gave claimant a functional capacity on the New York Heart Classification of a Class II [patients with cardiac disease resulting in slight limitation of physical activity. They are comfortable at rest. Ordinary physical activity results in fatigue, palpitation, dyspnea or anginal pain]. Claimant was seen by a consulting internist for the department on October 8, 2008. The consulting internist provided the following:

IMPRESSION:

- (1) Coronary Artery Disease, the examinee has a history of severe Coronary Artery Disease, cardiomyopathy, and congestive heart failure, status post PTCA, stent placement and bypass surgery. He does continue to have paresthesias of his lower extremities. He probably has peripheral artery disease and does need further investigation for that problem. He also had a carotid ultrasound and probably has some blockage in the carotid artery. He did quit smoking in the year 2000. He continues to have chronic shortness of breath as well as fatigue.

- (2) DIABETES:

The examinee has a history of diabetes, currently insulin dependent. His blood sugar ranges from 188 and 380, which is still fairly high.

MEDICAL SOURCE STATEMENT:

Based upon the exam today, examinee is able to occasionally lift less than ten pounds frequently and occasionally lift up to ten pounds. He is able to stand or walk less than two hours in an eight-hour workday and sit less than six hours in an eight-hour workday due to his probable claudication. He is able to do simple grasping, reaching, pushing, pulling, and fine manipulation but has limitations on the use of his lower extremities because of possible claudication and diabetic retinopathy.

On October 23, 2008, claimant's primary care physician, [REDACTED], diagnosed claimant with severe congestive heart failure, coronary artery disease, insulin dependent diabetes mellitus and neuropathy. The physician opined that claimant is limited to sitting, standing, and walking less than two hours in an eight-hour work day. [REDACTED] also noted that claimant has limited use of his feet and hands secondary to neuropathy.

After careful review of claimant's extensive medical record and the Administrative Law Judge's personal interaction with claimant at the hearing, this Administrative Law Judge finds that claimant's exertional and non-exertional impairments render claimant unable to engage in a full range of even sedentary work activities on a regular and continuing basis. 20 CFR 404, Subpart P. Appendix 11, Section 201.00(h). See Social Security Ruling 83-10; Wilson v Heckler, 743 F2d 216 (1986). The department has failed to provide vocational evidence which establishes that claimant has the residual functional capacity for substantial gainful activity and that, given claimant's age, education, and work experience, there are significant numbers of jobs in the national economy which the claimant could perform despite claimant's limitations. Accordingly, this Administrative Law Judge concludes that claimant is disabled for purposes of the MA program.

DECISION AND ORDER

The Administrative Law Judge, based upon the above findings of fact and conclusions of law, decides that claimant meets the definition of medically disabled under the Medical Assistance program as of October of 2007.

Accordingly, the department is ORDERED to initiate a review of the January 29, 2008 application, if it has not already done so, to determine if all other nonmedical eligibility criteria are met. The department shall inform claimant and his authorized representative of its determination in writing. Assuming that claimant is otherwise eligible for program benefits, the department shall review claimant's continued eligibility for program benefits in January of 2010.
