Disability determinations done by the State of Michigan for Medical Assistance (MA) based on disability use the Social Security Administration standards found in United States Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) at Title 20, Part 416. The law defines disability as the inability to do any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of at least 12 months. To meet this definition, you must have severe impairments that make you unable to do your past relevant work or any other substantial gainful work that exists in the national economy.

Disability determinations done by the State of Michigan, for State Disability Assistance (SDA), use the same standards with one minor difference. For State Disability Assistance (SDA) the medically determinable physical or mental impairments that prevent substantial gainful activity must result in death or last at least 90 days.

In accordance with the Federal Regulations an initial disability determination is a sequential evaluation process. The evaluation consists of five steps that are followed in a set order.

At step 1, a determination is made on whether Claimant is engaging in substantial gainful activity (20 CFR 416.920(b)). If you are performing activities for pay or profit, we will use 20 CFR 416.971 through 416.975 to evaluate the activities to determine if they are substantial gainful activity. Substantial gainful activity is defined as work activity: that is both substantial and gainful; and involves doing significant physical or mental activities. Gainful work activity is work activity that you do for pay or profit (20 CFR 416.972). If you are engaged in substantial gainful activity, you are not disabled regardless of how severe your physical or mental impairments are and regardless of your age, education, and work experience.

heading

Based on the evidence in the record and Claimant's testimony, Claimant is not engaged in substantial gainful activity.

At the second step it is determined whether you have a severe physical or mental impairment that meets the duration requirement or a combination of impairments that is severe and meets the duration requirement (20CFR 416.920). An impairment or combination of impairments is severe within the meaning of the regulations if it significantly limits an individual's ability to perform basic work activities. When we talk about basic work activities, we mean the abilities and aptitudes necessary to do most jobs. Examples of these include:

- (1) Physical functions such as walking, standing, sitting, lifting, pushing, pulling, reaching, carrying, or handling;
- (2) Capacities for seeing, hearing, and speaking;
- (3) Understanding, carrying out, and remembering simple instructions;
- (4) Use of judgment;
- (5) Responding appropriately to supervision, co-workers and usual work situations; and
- (6) Dealing with changes in a routine work setting.

An impairment or combination of impairments is not severe if it does not significantly limit your physical or mental ability to do basic work activities (20 CFR 416.921).

In addition to the limiting effect of the impairments they must also meet durational requirements, 90 days for State Disability Assistance (SDA) and 12 months for Medical Assistance (MA) based on disability. If we determine that your impairments are not severe, you are not disabled.

Claimant asserts disability based upon chest pains, migraine headaches, and back pain. The only medical evidence in the record is a Medical Examination Report (form DHS-49) dated September 9, 2008. The report gives a current diagnosis of high blood pressure, pinched nerve, and arthritis in the back. The report indicates that Claimant has a temporary disability but it cannot be determined when she can return to work. The report indicates that Claimant can not lift over 5 pounds and must sit for 12 hours of every 24. The form contains a signature by [REDACTED]. The signer did not place any medical designation behind her name (D.O., M.D. etc) and listed her specialty as Medical. The legitimacy of the reports source is highly suspect. It is noted that Claimant asserted she had a medical evaluation scheduled the day after this hearing and waived time limits in order to submit the results of that evaluation into this record. No other evidence has ever been submitted by Claimant.

The objective medical evidence of record is not sufficient to establish that claimant has any severe impairment that has lasted or are expected to last 12 months or more and prevent employment at any job for 12 months or more. Therefore, claimant is disqualified from receiving disability at this step. For purposes of a thorough review of Claimant's alleged disability, the analysis will continue.

At the third step, it is determined whether your impairments meet or equal the criteria of an impairment listed in a Social Security Administration impairment listing 20 CFR Part 404, Subpart P, Appendix 1. If your impairment meets or equals the criteria of a listing and meets the duration requirement, you are disabled.

The objective medical evidence of record is not sufficient to make a comparison to any impairment listing.

At the fourth step, we assess your residual functional capacity (RFC) to determine if you are still able to perform work you have done in the past. Your RFC is your ability to do physical and mental work activities on a sustained basis despite limitations from your impairments. Your RFC is assessed using all the relevant evidence in the record. If you can still do your past relevant work you are not disabled under these standards.

Claimant reports past relevant work as a teaching assistant. At this hearing Claimant specifically asserted she cannot work because of the pain in her lower back and her legs are weak and sometimes give out.

Your residual functional capacity is your remaining physical, mental, and other abilities. 20 CFR 416.929 says that statements about your pain or other symptoms will not alone establish that you are disabled, there must be medical signs and laboratory findings which show that you have a medical impairment(s) which could reasonably be expected to produce the pain or other symptoms alleged.

In this case there is no objective medical evidence in the record to support that Claimant has any impairment to work which has lasted for 12 months or more. In the absence of objective medical evidence to establish work limitations, Claimant is considered to be able to perform any work level. Claimant's past relevant work as a teaching assistant would require the capacity to do light work. Based on the lack of any objective medical evidence in the record, it is determined that Claimant is able to perform her past relevant work. Claimant is found ineligible at this step.

heading

At the fifth step your residual functional capacity (RFC) is considered along with your age, education, and work experience to see if you can make an adjustment to other work you have not previously done. If you have a combination of sufficient remaining abilities and transferable skills to adjust to other work, you are not disabled. If it is determined that you cannot make an adjustment to other work, we will find that you are disabled.

Claimant is closely approaching advanced age, has a limited education, a history of unskilled work and the residual functional capacity to do any work level. In accordance with Social Security Administration Medical-Vocational Guidelines rule 204.00 Claimant is not disabled.

DECISION AND ORDER

The Administrative Law Judge, based upon the above findings of fact and conclusions of law, decides the Department of Human Services properly determined that Claimant is not disabled and denied Claimant's application for Medical Assistance (MA) based on disability and State Disability Assistance (SDA).

It is ORDERED that the actions of the Department of Human Services, in this matter, are UPHELD.
