Macomb County DHS

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE: Robert J. Chavez

HEARING DECISION

This matter is before the undersigned Administrative Law Judge pursuant to MCL 400.9 and MCL 400.37 upon claimant's request for a hearing. After due notice, a hearing was held on April 28, 2011.

ISSUE

Was the denial of claimant's application for MA-P for lack of disability correct?

FINDINGS OF FACT

The Administrative Law Judge, based upon the competent, material and substantial evidence on the whole record, finds as material fact:

- (1) Claimant applied for MA-P on July 22, 2010.
- (2) Claimant is 54 years old.
- (3) Claimant has a high school education.
- (4) Claimant is not currently working.
- (5) Claimant has a prior work history of light, skilled employment.
- (6) On [REDACTED], an independent psychiatric evaluation diagnosed claimant with depressive disorder.

- (7) This examination noted that claimant rarely leaves the house, is sent food by his sister, rarely cooks anything but simple canned foods, has paranoia, neglects grooming and hygiene, has many appointments set up for him by his sister, has suicidal ideation, had disorganized narrative, has difficulty sleeping, and has significant mood disturbance.
- (8) Claimant received a GAF of 40.
- (9) A second independent examination reported that claimant's problems were not severe, based on a third party report by claimant's sister, who, it is noted, only sees claimant 3 times per year or less.
- (10) Other medical reports in claimant's file note that claimant has "psychotic thinking".
- (11) Medical reports from hospital admissions show that claimant often appeared confused and dysthymic, and support the initial independent examination results.
- (12) Claimant appeared at the hearing in an agitated state, showed confused thought processes, poor grooming, and complained of constant noise.
- (13) On September 23, 2010, the Medical Review Team denied MA-P, stating that claimant's impairment was not likely to last for 12 months.
- (14) On December 13, 2010, claimant filed for hearing.
- (15) On January 18, 2011, the State Hearing Review Team denied MA-P, and retroactive MA-P, stating that claimant was capable of performing other work.
- (16) SHRT concluded that claimant was capable of a wide range of light work, denying claimant's MA-P application under vocational rule 202.14.

(17) On April 28, 2011, a hearing was held before the Administrative Law Judge.

(18) Claimant was represented by [REDACTED]
[REDACTED].

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Medical Assistance (MA) program is established by Title XIX of the Social Security Act and is implemented by Title 42 of the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR). The Department of Human Services (DHS or Department) administers the MA program pursuant to MCL 400.10, et seq., and MCL 400.105. Department policies are found in the Bridges Administrative Manual (BAM), the Bridges Eligibility Manual (BEM) and the Bridges Reference Manual (BRM).

Federal regulations require that the Department use the same operative definition of the term “disabled” as is used by the Social Security Administration for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) under Title XVI of the Social Security Act. 42 CFR 435.540(a).

Disability is defined as the inability to do any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than 12 months. 20 CFR 416.905

This is determined by a five step sequential evaluation process where current work activity, the severity and duration of the impairment(s), statutory listings of medical impairments, residual functional capacity, and vocational factors (i.e., age, education, and work experience) are considered. These factors are always considered in order according to the five step sequential evaluation, and when a determination can be made at any step as to the claimant's disability status, no analysis of subsequent steps are necessary. 20 CFR 416.920

The first step that must be considered is whether the claimant is still partaking in Substantial Gainful Activity (SGA). 20 CFR 416.920(b). To be considered disabled, a person must be unable to engage in SGA. A person who is earning more than a certain monthly amount (net of impairment-related work expenses) is ordinarily considered to be engaging in SGA. The amount of monthly earnings considered as SGA depends on the nature of a person's disability; the Social Security Act specifies a higher SGA amount for statutorily blind individuals and a lower SGA amount for non-blind individuals. Both SGA amounts increase with increases in the national average wage index. The monthly SGA amount for statutorily blind individuals for 2010 is $1,640. For non-blind individuals, the monthly SGA amount for 2010 is $1000.

In the current case, claimant has testified that he is not working, and the Department has presented no evidence or allegations that claimant is engaging in SGA. Therefore, the Administrative Law Judge finds that the claimant is not engaging in SGA, and thus passes the first step of the sequential evaluation process.

The second step that must be considered is whether or not the claimant has a severe impairment. A severe impairment is an impairment expected to last 12 months or more (or result in death), which significantly limits an individual's physical or mental ability to perform basic work activities. The term "basic work activities" means the abilities and aptitudes necessary to do most jobs. Examples of these include:

- (1) Physical functions such as walking, standing, sitting, lifting, pushing, pulling, reaching, carrying or handling;
- (2) Capacities for seeing, hearing, and speaking;

- (3) Understanding, carrying out, and remembering simple instructions;
- (4) Use of judgment;
- (5) Responding appropriately to supervision, co-workers and usual work situations; and
- (6) Dealing with changes in a routine work setting. 20 CFR 416.921(b).

The purpose of the second step in the sequential evaluation process is to screen out claims lacking in medical merit. Higgs v. Bowen 880 F2d 860, 862 (6th Cir, 1988). As a result, the Department may only screen out claims at this level which are “totally groundless” solely from a medical standpoint. This is a de minimus standard in the disability determination that the court may use only to disregard trifling matters. As a rule, any impairment that can reasonably be expected to significantly impair basic activities is enough to meet this standard.

In the current case, claimant has presented medical evidence of a depressive disorder that has rendered him unable to interact appropriately with coworkers and the public and unable to maintain concentration, persistence, or pace, according to the great weight of the evidence by both the Department and independent sources. Claimant also has some history of paranoia, poor hygiene, disorganized thought processes and anhedonia that would prevent him from interacting appropriately with the public and in a normal job setting. Claimant’s medical records show that claimant has had this condition for several years. The Administrative Law Judge finds that this is a significant impairment to claimant’s performance of basic physical work activities, and is therefore enough to pass step two of the sequential evaluation process.

In the third step of the sequential evaluation, we must determine if the claimant's impairments are listed in Appendix 1 of Subpart P of 20 CFR, Part 404. 20 CFR 416.925. This is, generally speaking, an objective standard; either claimant's impairment is listed in this appendix, or it is not. However, at this step, a ruling against the claimant does not direct a finding of "not disabled"; if the claimant's impairment does not meet or equal a listing found in Appendix 1, the sequential evaluation process must continue on to step four.

The Administrative Law Judge finds that the claimant's medical records contain medical evidence of an impairment that meets or equals a listed impairment.

After considering the listings contained in Section 12.00 (Mental Impairments), the Administrative Law Judge finds that the claimant's medical records contain medical evidence of an impairment that meets or equals a listed impairment.

Appendix 1 of Subpart P of 20 CFR 404, Section 12.00 has this to say about mental disorders:

The criteria in paragraph A substantiate medically the presence of a particular mental disorder. Specific symptoms, signs, and laboratory findings in the paragraph A criteria of any of the listings in this section cannot be considered in isolation from the description of the mental disorder contained at the beginning of each listing category. Impairments should be analyzed or reviewed under the mental category(ies) indicated by the medical findings...

The criteria in paragraphs B and C describe impairment-related functional limitations that are incompatible with the ability to do any gainful activity. The functional limitations in paragraphs B and C must be the result of the mental disorder described in the diagnostic description, that is manifested by the medical findings in paragraph A...

We measure severity according to the functional limitations imposed by your medically determinable mental impairment(s). We assess functional limitations using the four criteria in paragraph B of the listings: Activities of daily living; social functioning; concentration, persistence, or pace; and episodes of decompensation.

Where we use "marked" as a standard for measuring the degree of limitation, it means more than moderate but less than extreme. A marked limitation may arise when several activities or functions are impaired, or even when only one is impaired, as long as the degree of limitation is such as to interfere seriously with your ability to function independently, appropriately, effectively, and on a sustained basis. See §§ 404.1520a and 416.920a.

12.04 Affective disorders: Characterized by a disturbance of mood, accompanied by a full or partial manic or depressive syndrome. Mood refers to a prolonged emotion that colors the whole psychic life; it generally involves either depression or elation.

The required level of severity for these disorders is met when the requirements in both A and B are satisfied...

- A. Medically documented persistence, either continuous or intermittent, of one of the following:
1. Depressive syndrome characterized by at least four of the following:
 - a. Anhedonia or pervasive loss of interest in almost all activities; or
 - b. Appetite disturbance with change in weight; or
 - c. Sleep disturbance; or
 - e. Decreased energy; or
 - f. Feelings of guilt or worthlessness; or
 - g. Difficulty concentrating or thinking; or
 - h. Thoughts of suicide; or
 - i. Hallucinations, delusions, or paranoid thinking; or
 2. Manic syndrome characterized by at least three of the following: ...
 3. Bipolar syndrome with a history of episodic periods manifested by the full symptomatic picture of both manic and depressive syndrome (and currently characterized by both syndromes);

AND

B. Resulting in at least two of the following:

1. Marked restriction of activities of daily living; or
2. Marked difficulties in maintaining social functioning; or
3. Marked difficulties in maintaining concentration, persistence, or pace; or
4. Repeated episodes of decompensation, each of extended duration;

OR

C. Medically documented history of a chronic affective disorder of at least 2 years' duration that has caused more than a minimal limitation of ability to do basic work activities, with symptoms or signs currently attenuated by medication or psychosocial support, and one of the following:

1. Repeated episodes of decompensation, each of extended duration; or
2. A residual disease process that has resulted in such marginal adjustment that even a minimal increase in mental demands or change in the environment would be predicted to cause the individual to decompensate; or
3. Current history of 1 or more years' inability to function outside a highly supportive living arrangement, with an indication of continued need for such an arrangement.

In order to meet or equal the listings for mental impairment, a claimant must either meet or equal the recommended listings contained in both the A and B criteria, or meet or equal the listings in the C criteria. After examination of the C criteria, the undersigned holds that there is not enough evidence to show that the claimant meets this listing. However, a careful examination of claimant's medical records, supplied from a treating source, show claimant meets both the A and B criteria.

Claimant's psychological reports, as well as those administered by the Department show documented persistence of claimant's depressive disorder. Claimant's records also show an individual with decreased energy. Claimant has poor concentration, some sleep disturbances, anhedonia, suicidal ideation and paranoia. Claimant complained of hearing a constant ringing during the hearing. Therefore, the undersigned holds that claimant meets or equals the listings found in the A criteria.

Claimant also has marked difficulties in maintaining concentration, persistence and pace. Concentration, persistence or pace refers to the ability to sustain focused attention and concentration sufficiently long to permit the timely and appropriate completion of tasks commonly found in work settings. These limitations must be of such an extent that claimant is held to be markedly impaired with regard to concentration persistence and pace. 20 CFR 404 App 1, Sub P, 12.00 (C)(3).

Independent medical examinations show a person with poor memory and concentration. Claimant was described as difficult to interview. Claimant requires assistance from his sister to keep and maintain appointments. Claimant had difficulty recalling the date. Claimant could only recite three objects after two trials, and after three minutes, could only recall 1 object. Claimant was unable to concentrate enough to do serial 7's. Claimant was given a poor prognosis with significant mood disturbance. Claimant has reports of anhedonia.

Furthermore, claimant's interactions with the undersigned during the hearing lend credibility to this report; claimant had trouble staying on a single line of questioning, often spoke on inappropriate subjects, and was unable to concentrate during the hearing.

Therefore, as these categories are exactly what were contemplated by the listings for the B criteria, the undersigned holds that claimant is markedly limited in maintaining concentration, persistence and pace.

Finally, social functioning refers to the capacity to interact independently, appropriately, effectively, and on a sustained basis with other individuals. 20 CFR 404 App 1, Sub P, 12.00 (C)(2). Claimant lives alone, and rarely leaves the house. Claimant's neighbors do chores for claimant outside the house, but claimant does not talk or socialize with his neighbors. Claimant does not grocery shop for himself, and instead relies on packages of food sent to him by his sister. Claimant presented in an ungroomed state, and was uncooperative during the hearing. Prior to the hearing, claimant created a disturbance in the waiting room. Claimant has paranoia issues. More importantly, claimant has been given a GAF of 40 by an independent examiner. A GAF between 41-and 50 is generally defined as having a serious impairment in social, occupational, or school functioning. Claimant's GAF is below this level. These GAF scores would be consistent, considering the record as a whole, with an individual with a serious impairment in social functioning.

Furthermore, while there is some contradicting evidence in the packet, the undersigned does not assign this evidence much weight. The contradicting statement was given by a second independent examiner, who seems to rely heavily on statements from claimant's sister. This statement admits that claimant's sister has very limited knowledge of the situation, and therefore, is not a reliable witness. As this statement relies heavily on this unreliable witness, and is contradictory to the other medical evidence in the file, the undersigned chooses to assign this statement little weight.

Therefore, when combining claimant's independent examination, and claimant's psychiatric record, including claimant's GAF scores, the Administrative Law Judge is able to hold that claimant is markedly impaired in social functioning.

As claimant is markedly impaired in concentration, persistence and pace, and social functioning, the Administrative Law Judge holds that the claimant meets the B criteria in the listings for mental impairments.

As claimant meets both the A and B criteria, the Administrative Law Judge holds that claimant meets or equals the listings contained in section 12.00, and therefore, passes step 3 of our 5 step process. By meeting or equaling the listing in question, claimant must be considered disabled. 20 CFR 416.925.

With regard to steps 4 and 5, when a determination can be made at any step as to the claimant's disability status, no analysis of subsequent steps are necessary. 20 CFR 416.920. Therefore, the Administrative Law Judge sees no reason to continue his analysis, as a determination can be made at step 3.

Finally, given the nature of the claimant's appearance at the hearing, his testimony as to how infrequently he leaves the house, his statements as to his reliance on his sister to provide food, which is shipped to him, his disorganized thought processes evinced throughout the hearing, and the evidence of record, the undersigned feels that the Department should contact Adult Protective Services to investigate as to whether the claimant requires assistance or needs care in meeting his needs inside his home.

DECISION AND ORDER

The Administrative Law Judge, based upon the above findings of fact and conclusions of law, decides that the claimant is disabled for the purposes of the MA program. Therefore, the decisions to deny claimant's application for MA-P were incorrect.

Accordingly, the Department's decision in the above stated matter is, hereby, REVERSED.

The Department is ORDERED to process claimant's MA-P application and award required benefits, provided claimant meets all non-medical standards as well. The Department is further ORDERED to initiate a review of claimant's disability case in June 2012.

The Department is also ORDERED to refer claimant's case to Adult Protective Services for an examination as to whether claimant is capable of meeting his own needs inside his home.
