ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE: Aaron McClintic

HEARING DECISION

This matter is before the undersigned Administrative Law Judge pursuant to MCL 400.9 and MCL 400.37 upon the Claimant's request for a hearing. After due notice, an in person hearing was held on May 23, 2011. The Claimant appeared along with her advocate Medical Contac t Worker appeared on behalf of the Department.

ISSUE

Was the Department correct in denying Claimant's MA application?

FINDINGS OF FACT

The Administrative Law Judge, based upon the competent, material and substantial evidence on the whole record, finds as material fact:

1. Claimant applied for MA-P and SDA on December 29, 2010.

2. The Medical Review Team denied the applications on January 18, 2011.

3. Claimant filed a request for hearing on February 9, 2011 regarding the MA denial.

4. A hearing was held on May 23, 2010.

5. On March 7, 2011 the Stat e Hearing Review Team denied the application becaus e Claimant's condition is improvin g or is expected to improve within 12 months from the date of onset or from the date of surgery. Therefore MA-P is denied for lack of durations

9. Claimant is 5'7" tall and weighs 170 pounds. Claimant has lost 30 pounds since his surgery.

10. Claimant is 55 years of age.

11. Claimant's impairments have been medically diagnosed ruptured diverticulum with peritonitis with colostomy bag, hemmoroids and anemia.

12. Claimant's physical symptoms are pain and irritation at colostomy attachment point.

12. Claimant takes the following prescriptions:

- a. Extra strength tylenol
- 13. Claimant completed the 11th grade.
- 14. Claimant is able to read, write, and perform basic math skills.
- 15. Claimant is not currently working.
- 16. Claimant last worked as a power washer. The job duties included lifting up to 50 lbs., standing, bending/ stooping, gras ping. Claimant previously worked as a janitor.
- 17. Claimant testified to the following physical limitations:
 - i. Sitting: 15 minutes before has to stand or lie down
 - ii. Standing: 10 minutes
 - iii. Walking: 1 block
 - iv. Bend/stoop: bending and stooping are difficult b/c of bag
 - v. Lifting: 5-10 lbs.
 - vi. Grip/grasp: no difficulty
- 18. Claimant lives with his sister.
- 19. Claimant testified t hat he does not perform some household chores including mopping. Claimant does not do yard work.
- 20. A DHS-49 Medical Examinatio n Report was completed by on April 7, 2011. This r eport states that Claimant can never lift more than 20 lbs., that Claimant can stand and/or walk less than 2 hours in an 8-hour day, and t hat Claimant can sit less than 6 hours in an 8 hour day.

- 21. Claimant has difficulty with his colostomy bag falling off if he attempts to pick something up or does any bending or stooping.
- 22. Surgery to reverse Claimant's colostomy has been advised but Claimant lacks the insurance c overage or other me ans to hav e that surgery.
- 23. Claimant is blind in his right eye due to childhood injury. Claimant has blurred vision in his left eye.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Medical Assistance (MA) program is es tablished by Title XI X of the Social Security Act and is implemented by Title 42 of the Code of F ederal Regulations (CFR). The Depart ment of Human Serv ices (formerly known as the Family Independence Agency) administers the MA program pursuant to MCL 400.10, et seq., and MCL 400.105. Department po licies are found in the Bridges Administrative Manua I (BAM), the Br idges Elig ibility Manual (BEM) and the Program Reference Manual (PRM).

Federal regulations require that the department use the same operative definition for "disabled" as used for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) under Title XVI of the Social Security Act. 42 CFR 435.540(a).

"Disability" is:

... the inability to do any substantial gainful activit y by reason of any medic ally determinable phy sical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in deat h or which has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than 12 months... 20 CFR416.905

In determining whether an individual is disabled, 20 CFR 416. 920 requires the trier of fact to follow a sequential evaluat ion process by which current work activity; the severity of impairment(s); residual functional capacity, and vocational factors (i.e., age, education, and work experience) are assessed in that order. A determination that an individual is disabled can be made at any step in the sequential evaluation. Then evaluation n under a subsequent step is not necessary.

1. Current Substantial Gainful Activity

First, the trier of fact must determine if the individual is working and if the work is substantial gainful activity. 20 CFR 416.920(b). Substantial gainful activity (SGA) is defined as work ac tivity that is both substantial and gainful. "Substantial work activity" is work activity that involv es doing signif icant phys ical or mental activities. 20 CFR 416.972(a). "Gainful work activity" is work that is usually done for pay or profit, whether or not a prof it is rea lized. 20 CF R 41 6.972(b). Generally if an indiv idual has earnings from employment or self-employ ment above a specific level set out in the regulations, it is presumed that she has the demonstrated ability to engage in SGA. 20 CF R 416.974 and 416.975. I f an individual engages in SGA, she is not di sabled regardless of how severe her physical and mental impair ments are and r egardless of her age, education and work experience. If the individual is not engaging in SGA, the analysis proceeds to the sec ond step. In this cas e, under the first step, the Claimant was not currently working at the time of the hearing. Therefore, the Claimant is not disgualified from receipt of disability benefits under Step 1.

2. Medically Determinable Impairment – 12 Months

Second, in order to be consider ed disabled for purposes of MA, a person must have a "severe impairment" 20 CFR 416. 920(c). A severe impairment is an impairment which s ignificantly limits an ind ividual's physical or m ental ability to perform basic work activities. Basic work activitie s mean the abilities and aptitudes necessary to do most jobs. Examples include:

- (1) Physical functions such as walking, standing, sitting, lifting, pushing, pulling, reaching, carrying or handling;
- (2) Capacities for seeing, hearing and speaking;

(3) Understanding, carrying out, and remembering simple instructions.

- (4) Use of judgment;
- (5) Responding appropriately to supervision, co-workers and usual work situations; and
- (6) Dealing with changes in a routine work setting. 20CFR 416.921(b)

The purpose of the second step in the sequential evaluation process is to screen out claims lacking in medical merit. The court in Salmi v S ec'y of H ealth a nd Human Servs, 774 F2d 685 (6 th Cir 1985) held that an impairment qualifies as "non-severe" only if it "would not affect the Claimant's ability to work," "regardless of the claimant's age, education, or prior work experience." Id. At 691-92. O nly slight abnormalities that minimally affect a Claimant's ability to work can be considered non-severe. Higgs v Bowen, 880 F.2d 860, 862 (6th Cir. 1988); Farris v Sec'y of Health & Human Servs, 773 F.2d 85, 90 (6th Cir. 1985).

In this case, the Claimant has pres ented medical evidence from medical providers showing diagnos es of small bowel obs truction with colostemy. Claimant also testified to physical limitations in terms of sitting, standing, walking and lifting.

The medical evidence has established that Claimant has physical limitations that could have more than a minimal effect on basic work activities; and Claimant's impairments have lasted contin uously or will last for more than twelve months. Because t his is a de minimus test, it is necessary to continue to evaluate the Claimant's impairments under step three.

3. Listed Impairment

In the third step of the s equential evaluation, we must determine if the claimant's impairment is listed in A ppendix 1 of Subpart P of 20 CF R, Part 404. This is, generally speaking, an objective standard; either Claimant's impairment is listed in this appendix, or it is not. However, at this step, a ruling against the Claimant does not direct a finding of "not disabled"; if the Claim ant's impairment does not meet or equal a listing f ound in Appendix 1, the sequential evaluation process must continue on to step four.

The Administrative Law Judge finds that the Claimant's medical r ecords do not contain m edical evidence of an impair rment that meets or equals a listed impairment. Therefore, the Claimant cannot be found to be disabled at this step, based upon medical evidence alone. 20 CFR 416.920(d). We must thus proceed to the next steps, and evaluate Claimant's vocational factors.

In making this determination, the under signed has considered the listings in Section 5.00 (Digestive System) A. What kinds of disorders do we consider in the digestive s ystem? Disorders of the digestive system include gastrointestinal hemorrhage, hepatic (liver) dysfunction, inflammatory bowel disease, short bowel syndrome, and malnutrition. They may al so lead to complications, such as obstruction, or be accompanied by manifestations in other body systems.

B. What docum entation do we need? We need a record of your medica I evidence, including clinical and laborat ory findings. The documentation should include appropriate medically accept able imaging studies and reports of endoscopy, operations, and pathology, as appropriate to each listing, to document the severity and duration of your dig estive dis order. Medically acceptable imaging includes, but is not limited to, x-ray imaging, sonogr aphy, computerized axial tomography (CAT scan), magnetic resonance imaging (MRI), and radionuclide scans. Appropriate means that the technique used is the proper one to support the evaluation and diagnosis of the disorder. The findings required by these listings mus t occur wit hin the period we are consider ing in connection with your application or continuing disability review.

C. How do we consider the effects of treatment?

1. Digestive disorder s frequently respond to medic allor surgical treatment; therefore, we generally consider the severity and duration of these disorders within the context of prescribed treatment.

2. We assess the effects of treatment, in cluding medication, therapy, surgery, or any other form of treatment you rec eive, by determining if there are improvements in the symptoms, signs, and laboratory findings of your diges tive disorder. We also assess any side effects of your treatment that may further limit your functioning.

3. To assess the effects of your treatment, we may need information about:

a. The treatment you have been prescribed (for example, the type of medication or therapy, or your use of parenteral (intravenous) nutrition or supplemental enteral nutrition via a gastrostomy);

b. The dosage, method, and frequency of administration;

- c. Your response to the treatment;
- d. Any adverse effects of such treatment; and
- e. The expected duration of the treatment.

4. Becaus e the effects of treatment may be temporar y or long-term, in most cases we need infor mation about the impact of your treatment, including its expected duration and side effects, over a sufficient period of time to help us assess its outcome. When adverse effects of treatment contribute to the severity of your impairment(s), we will consider the duration or expected duration of the treatment when we assess the duration of your impairment(s).

5. If you need parenteral (intrav enous) nutrition or supplemental enteral nutrition via a gastrostomy to avoid debilitating comp lications of a digestive disorder, this treatment will not, in itself, indicate that you are unable to do any gainful activity, except under 5.07, short bowel syndrome (see 5.00F).

6. If you have not received ongoing tr eatment or have not had an ongoing relationship with the medical c ommunity despite the existenc e of a severe impairment(s), we will ev aluate the se verity and duration of y our digestive impairment on the basis of t he current medical and ot her evidence in your case record. If you have not received treatme nt, you may not be able to show an impairment that meets the criteria of one of the digestive system listings, but your digestive impairment may medically equal a listing or be di sabling based on consideration of your residual functi onal capacity, age, education, and work experience.

None of the medical evidence thus far presented to the Administrative Law Judge contains any allegations or indications of the severity of the above listings. At most the medical ev idence s hows rupt ured divertic ulum with peritonitis with colostemy.

Evaluation under the dis ability regulations requires careful c onsideration of whether the claimant can do past relevant work (PRW), which is our step four, and if not , whether they can reasonabl y be expected to make vocational adjustments to other work, which is our st ep five. When the individual's residua I functional capacity (RFC) precludes meeting the physical and mental demands of PRW, consideration of all facts of the case will lead to a finding that

- the individual has the functional and vocational capacity to for other work, considering t he individual's age, education and work experience, and that jobs which the individual could perform exist in signific ant numbers in the national economy, or
- 2) The extent of work that t he Claimant can do, functionally and vocationally, is t oo narrow to sustain a finding of the ability to engage in SGA. SSR 86-8.

Given that the severity of the impairm ent must be the basis f or a finding of disability, steps four a nd five of the sequential ev aluation process must begin with an as sessment of the claimant's func tional limitations and capacities. After the RFC assessment is made, we must determine whether the individual retains the capacity to perform PR W. Following that, an eval uation of the Claimant's age, education and work experience and training will be made to determine if the Claimant retains the capacity to participate in SGA.

RFC is an assessment of an individual's ability to do sustained work-related physical and mental activi ties in a work setting on a regular and continuing basis—meaning 8 hours a day, 5 days a week , or an equivalent work schedule. RFC assessments may only consider functional limitations and restrictions that result from a claimant's medically determinable impairment, including the impact from related symptoms. It is important to note that RFC is not a measure of the least an individual can do de spite their limitations, but rather, the most. Furthermore, medical impairments and sym ptoms, including pain, are not intrinsically exertional or nonexertional: the functional limitations caused by medical impairments and sy mptoms are placed into the exertional and nonexertional categories. SSR 96-8p, 20 CFR 416.945 (a).

However, our RFC evaluations must nece ssarily differ between steps four and five. At step four of the evaluation proc ess, RFC must not be expressed initially in terms of the step five ex ertional categories of "sed entary", "light", "medium", "heavy", and "very heavy" work because the first consideration in step four is whether the claimant can do PRW as they actually performed it. Such exertional categories are useful to determine whet her a Claimant can perform at her PRW as is normally performed in the national ec onomy, but this is generally not useful for a step four determination bec ause particular occupations may not requir e all of the exertional and nonexertional demands necessary to do a full range of work at a given exertional level. SSR 96-8p.

Therefore, at this step, it is important to a ssess the Claima nt's RFC on a function-by-function basis, based upon all the relevant evidence of an individual's ability to do work related activities. Only at step 5 can we cons ider the Claimant's exertional category.

An RFC assessment must be based on all relevant evidence in the case record, such as medical history, laboratory findings, the effects of treatments (including limitations or restrictions imposed by the mechanics of treatment), reports of daily activities, lay evidence, recorded observations, medical treating source statements, effects of symptoms (including pain) that are reasonably attributed to the impairment, and evidence from attempts to work. SSR 96-8p.

RFC assessments must also address both the remaining exertional and nonexertional capac ities of the Claimant. Exertion al capac ity addresses an individual's limitations and restrictions of physical strength, and the Cla imant's ability to perform everyday activities su ch as sitting, standing, walk ing, lifting, carrying, pushing and pulling; each activity must be considered separat ely. Nonexertional capacity considers all work-related limitations and restrictions that do not depend on an indiv idual's physical s trength, such as the ability to stoop , climb, reach, handle, communicate and understand and remember instructions.

Symptom, such as pain, are neither exertional or nonexertional limitations; however s uch symptoms can often affect the capacity to perform activities as contemplated above and thus, can cause exer tional or nonexertional limitations. SSR 96-8.

Claimant has als o made allegations of di sabling pain. When considering pain, there must be an assessment of whether the claimant's subjective complaints are supported by an objective m edical condition which can be expected to cause such complaints. 20 CFR 416.929, Rogers v. Commissioner, 486 F. 3d 234 (6th Cir. 2007). An assess ment must be done to consider whether objective medical evidence confirms the severity of the alleged pain or whether the objectively established medical condition is of such a severity that it can reasonably be expected to produce the alleged disabling pain. Duncan v Secretary of HHS, 801 F2d 847, 853 (1986); Felisky v Bowen, 28 F3d 213 (6th Cir, 1994). Furthermore, the adjudicator must evaluate the intensity, persistence and limiting effects of the symptoms on the claimant's ability to do basic work acti vities, i.e. daily activities, location duration, frequency, intensity of symptoms, aggravating and precipitating factors, type, dosage effectiveness, and side effects of any medications, and any other treatment undertaken to reliev e symptoms or other measures taken t o relieve symptoms such as lying down. Rogers.

In this case, medical evidence from Cla imant's doctor confirms existence of a condition which can be expected to caus e complaints of pain. The s pecific nature of Claimant's ailment is a condit ion which often results in ext reme, sometimes disabling pain. Claimant's treating sources confirm Claimant's credibility r egarding the complaints of pain, and further stat e that Claimant's ailment is one as such that may cause di sabling pain. Treating source opinions cannot be discounted unless the Admini strative Law Judge provides good reasons for discounting the opinion. Rogers; Bowen v Commissioner, 473 F. 3d 742 (6th Cir. 2007). The undersigned sees no reason to discount Claimant's treating source opinions.

Therefore, after careful review of Claimant's medical rec ord and the Administrative Law J udge's interactions with Claimant at the hearing, the undersigned finds that Claimant's medical condiction is of such a severity t hat it can reasonably be expected to produce Claimant's complaints of disabling pain.

In the current case, Claim ant testified during his he aring that he retains the capacity to stand for 10 minutes, sit for 15 minutes, lift 10-15 pounds, and walk approximately 1 block. A DHS-49 Medi cal Examination Report was completed by Dr. Ledgerwood on April 7, 2011. This report states that Claimant can never lift more than 20 lbs., that Claimant can st and and/or walk less than 6 hours in an 8-hour day, and that Claimant can sit about 6 hours in an 8 hour day.

Claimant's medical r ecords confirm diag noses of ruptured diverticulum with peritonitis and colostomy bag following surgery going back to December 2010. There are Doctor's notes from office visits for the period in question. With regard to the complaints of pain, Cla imant ex pressed familiarity with the pain scale . Claimant reported his pain to be around a 3-10 on the scale with the medications, depending on the day and the circumst ances. Claimant des cribed the pain further as a constant, even with medications.

The Administrative Law J udge therefor e conc ludes that Claimant als o has functional limitations resulting from hi s symptoms that affect his abilities to understand, carry out and remember instruct ions, and maintain concentration, persistence and pace.

Claimant's PRW includes work as a power washer. These jobs as typically performed and as described by the Claimant involve the use of both arms and is at the medium exertional level. Claimant's cannot perform at the medium exertional leve. Therefore, the Administrative Law Judge concludes that Claimant does not retain the capacity to perform his past relevant work.

In the fifth step of the sequential consideration of a disability claim, the Administrative Law Judge must determine if the Claimant 's impairment(s) prevents Claimant from doing other work. 20 CFR 416. 920(f). This determination is based upon the Claimant's:

- residual functional c apacity defined simply as "what can you still do des pite you limitations?" 20 CFR 416.945;
- (2) age, education, and work experience, 20 CF R 416.963-.965; and
- (3) the kinds of work which exist in s ignificant numbers in the national economy whic h the claimant could perform despite his/her limitations. 20 CFR 416.966.

See Felton v DSS 161 Mich. App 690, 696 (1987).

At step five, RFC must be expressed in terms of, or related to, the exertional categories when the adjudicator determines whether there is othe r work that the individual can do. However, in order for an individual to do a full range of work at a given exertional level, such as sede ntary, the individual must be able to perform substantially all of the exertional and nonexertional functions required at that level. SSR 96-8p. The individual has the burden of prov ing that they are disabled and of raising any issue bearing on that determination or decision. SSR 86-8.

If the remaining phys ical and mental capaci ties are consistent with meeting the physical and mental demands of a signific ant number of jobs in the national economy, and the Claimant has the vocati onal capabilities (considering age, education and past work experience) to make an adjustment to work different from that performed in the past, it shall be determined that the claimant is not disabled. However, if the Claimant's physical, mental and vocational capacities do not allow the individual to adjust to work different from that performed in the past, it shall be determined to adjust the claimant is disabled. SSR 86-8.

For the purpose of determining the exer tional requirements of work in the national economy, jobs are cl assified as "sedentary", " light", "medium", "heavy", and "very heavy". These terms have the same meaning as are used in the Dictionary of Occupational Titles. In order to evaluate the claimant's skills and to help determine the existence in the national economy of work the claimant is able to do, occupations are classified as unskilled, semiskilled and skilled. SSR 86-8.

These aspects are tied together through use of the rules established in Appendix 2 to Subpart P of the regulations (20 CR 404, Appendix 2 to Subpart P, Section 200-204 et . seq) to make a determination as to disability. They reflect the analysis of the various vocational fa ctors (i.e., age, education, and work experience) in combination with the individual's residual functional capacity (used to determine his or her maximum sustained work capability for sedentary, light, medium, heavy, or v ery heavy work) in evaluating the indiv idual's ability to engage in substantial gainful activity in ot her than his or her vocationally relevant past work. Where the findings of fact made with respect to a particular individual's vocational factors and residual functional capacity coincide with all of the criteria of a particular rule, the rule directs a conc lusion as to whether the individual is or is not disabled. 20 CFR 404, Subpart P, Appendix 2, Rule 200.00(a).

In the application of the rules, the indi vidual's residual functional capac ity, age, education, and work experience must firs t be determined. The correct disability decision (i.e., on the i ssue of ability to engage in substantial ga inful activity) is found by then locating the indi vidual's specific vocational profile. Since the r ules are predicated on an individual 's having an impairment wh ich manifests itself by limitations in meeting the strength requirements of j obs, they may not be fully applicable where the nature of an individual's impairm ent does not result in such limitations, e.g., certain mental, sens ory, or skin impair rments. 20 CF R 404, Subpart P, Appendix 2, Rule 200.00(c)-200.00(d).

In the evaluation of disability where the individual has solely a nonexertional type of impairment, determination as to whether disability exists shall be based on the principles in the appropriate sec tions of the regulations, givi ng consideration to the rules for specific case situations. T he rules do n ot direct factual conc lusions of disabled or not disabled for individua Is with solely nonexertional types of impairments. 20 CFR 404, Subpart P, Appendix 2, Rule 200.00(e)(1).

However, where an individual has an impairment or combination of impairment s resulting in both strength limitations and nonexertional limitations, the rules are considered in determining first whether a finding of disabled may be possible based on the strength limitat ions alone; if not, the rule(s) reflecting the individual's maximum residual s trength capabilities, age, educ ation, and work experience provide a framework for consid eration of how much the individual's work capability is further diminis hed in terms of any types of jobs that would be contraindicated by the none xertional limitations. Fu rthermore, when there are combinations of nonexertiona I and exertional limitati ons which cannot be wholly determined under the rules, full c onsideration must be given to all of the relevant facts in the case in accordance with the definitions and discussions of each factor in the appropriate sections of the regulat ions, which will provide insight into the adjudicative weight to be accorded each factor.

Claimant is 55 years old, with an 11 th grade education and previous work history performed at the medium and light ex ertional levels. Cla imant's exertional impairments likely render Claimant able to perform work at the sedentary level; Claimant retains the capacity.

That being said, Claimant's ability to perform work at the sedentary level in no way is a judgment of resi dual functional capacity. RF C is an as sessment of an individual's ability to do sustained work-related physic al and mental activities in a work setting on a regular and continuing basis—meaning 8 hours a day, 5 days a week, or an equivalent work schedule.

Furthermore, this is only a judgment of exertional limitations. The rules state that exertional limitations must first be considered to dete rmine disability solely on strength factors; if those prove inconc lusive, nonexer tional limit ations must be factored in to determine Claimant's true RFC.

Both the MRT and the SHRT evaluated Cla imant solely on exertional factors; SHRT's evaluation stated that "there was no objective evidence of a significant disabling physical or mental impairment that would preclude basic work activity." This deter mination did not tak e into account the full r ange of Claimant's limitations, and did not factor in at all Claimant's nonexertional limitations, as are required by the rules.

Claimant's nonexertional limitat ions, disc ussed abov e, are supported by the objective medical ev idence. Starting with the basic a ssumption that Claimant's exertional limitations limit claimant to either s edentary work, or, viewing things in a light favorable to the Department, light work, Claimant's none xertional limitations stemming from Claimant's complaints of disabling pain, render Claimant unable to engage in ev en a full range of sedentary work. Furthermore, even if Claimant's nonexertional limitations relating to Cla imant's ab ility to maintain c oncentration, persistence and pace with regard to work related activities were absent, the undersigned would hav e s erious doubts regarding claimant's ability to sustain employment, even at the sedentary level.

Therefore, after careful review of Claimant's medical rec ords and the Administrative Law Judge's personal interaction with Claimant at the hearing, this Administrative Law J udge finds that clai mant's exertional and non-exertiona I impairments render claimant unable to engage in a full range of even sedent ary work activities on a regular and conti nuing basis. 20 CFR 404, Subpart P, Appendix 2, Section 201. 00(h). See Soc ial Sec urity Ruling 83-10; Wilson v Heckler, 743 F2d 216 (1986). T he Department has failed to provide voc ational evidence which establishes that Claimant has the residual functional capacity for substantial gainful ac tivity and that, given Claimant's age, education, and work experience, there are significant numbers of jobs in the national economy which the Claimant could perform despite Claimant 's limita tions. Accordingly, this Administrative Law Judge concludes that Claimant is disabled for the purposes of the MA program. The limitations Claimant experiences due to his colostomy bag, the paid he experiences at the point of the attachment, and the need to change the bag on a regular basis were also considered in the assessment that his limitations preclude him from full time work at even the sedentary level.

DECISIONS & ORDER

The Administrative Law Judge, based upon the above findings of fact and conclusions of law, decides that the Claimant is disabled for the purposes of the MA program. Therefore, the decisions to deny Claimant's application for MA-P was incorrect.

Accordingly, the Department's decisi on in the above stated matter is, hereby, REVERSED.

The Depar tment is ORDERED to proces s Claimant 's MA-P applic ation and award all benefits that Claim ant is entitled to rece ive under the appropriate regulations. The Department is further ORDERED to initiate a revie w of Claimant's disability case in June 2012.
