CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

FAP was established by the U.S. Food Stamp Act of 1977 and is implemented by Federal regulations f ound in T itle 7 of t he Code of Federal Regulations. DHS administers FAP pursuant to MCL 400.10 et seq. and Michigan Administ rative Code Rules (MACR) 400.3001-400.3015. DHS' FAP pol icies and procedures are found in Bridges Administrative Manual (BAM), Bridges Eligibility Manual (BEM), and Reference Tables (RFT). These manuals are available online at www.michigan.gov/dhs-manuals.

SDA provides financial assistance for dis abled persons and is established by 2004 Michigan Public Acts (PA) 344. DHS administers the SDA program pursuant to MCL 400.10 et seq., and MACR 400.3151-400.3180. Department policies are found in BAM, BEM and RFT. Id.

In this cas e, DHS alleges first that Respo ndent failed to report changes in his family group in September, 2006, and se cond, that on two subsequent applications in 2007 Claimant falsely reported that his family gr oup consisted of five people wh en in fact it consisted of three people. DHS requests findings of IPV of the FAP and SDA programs and, in the event that the Administrati ve Law Judge m akes these findings, DHS asks that Respondent be disqualified from receiving FAP and SDA benefits. DHS requests the disqualification penalty for FAP and SDA first-time offenses, and an Order permitting recoupment of $1,459 FAP and $3,484 SDA benefits unlawfully received.

The applic able DHS manual s ection in this case is BAM 720, "Intentional Program Violation." BAM 720 sets forth the definition of IPV on page 1:

INTENTIONAL PROGRAM VIOLATION DEFINITIONS All Programs Suspected IPV

Suspected IPV means an OI [overissuance] exists for which all three of the following conditions exist:

 The client intentionally failed to repo rt information or intentionally gave in complete or inaccurate information needed to make a correct benefit determination, and

- The client was clearly and correctly instructed regarding his or her reporting responsibilities, and
- The cli ent has no a pparent physical or mental imp airment that limits his or her understanding or ability to fulfill their reporting responsibilities.

IPV is su spected when there is clear and convincing evidence that the client or CDC p rovider has intentionally withheld or misrepresented information for the purpose of establishing, maintaining, increasing or preventing reduction of program benefits or eligibility. BAM 720, p. 1 (boldface in original).

I must apply BAM 720 to the facts of this case to determine if all three of the elements of IPV have been met. I begin with the first element, which requires that the client must have intentionally failed to report information on or intentionally given incomplete or inaccurate information needed to make a correct benefit determination. If I determine that any part of the first element did not occur, I must find that the first element has not been met. Furthermore, BAM 720 requires that all three elements be met. So if the first, or any other, element is not met, then I must find that DHS has failed to prove IPV by clear and convincing evidence and DHS' request must be denied.

In making my decision in this case I have reviewed all of the evidence and testimony as a whole. I find and determine the Respondent failed to report the changes in his family group in September, 2006, and further that Respondent reported inaccurate information on his July, 2007 application and his December, 2007 Semi-Annual Contact Report. I base these conclusions on the lack of enrollments for the two children in the Public Schools System for the 2006-2007 school year, and on the assistance records showing the children in the mother's family group. Having found a failure to report changes, and that inaccurate information was provided twice, I now turn to the question of intent. There are actually two intent questions, first, whether Respondent intentionally failed to report changes (September, 2006), and second, whether Respondent intentionally reported false information (July and December, 2007).

Before I can determine whether Respondent intentionally failed to report changes, I must go to the second elem ent, which is whether he had knowledge of his responsibility. I do this because if Respondent did not hav e knowledge of his responsibility, he is not capable of intentionally failing to perform it.

I have examined all of the evidence and testimony in this case as a whole. I find that Respondent signed an Applic ation in 2005, and received an Information Booklet with the information that changes were to be reported within ten days. I find this is clear and convincing evidence that he was informed of his responsibility. I find that DHS has established the second IPV element, that Respondent was clearly and correctly instructed about his reporting responsibilities.

I further find and determine Respondent was clearly and correctly instructed that he was required to tell the truth on the 2007 documents. I base this finding on the Respondent's signatures on these documents under certifications to that effect. I determine that his signature meant that he knew he had the responsibility to be truthful.

Now, returning to the first IPV element, I find and conclude that the requirements of this element are met. Respondent knew of his re—sponsibility to be—truthful and to report changes, he knowingly failed to perform these acts, and, the information was necessary to DHS in order to make correct benefit determinations. Those signatures, in the face of the Public Sc hools information and the public assistance records, indicate to me that the children were ba—ck with their mother in public assistance records, indicate to me that the children were ba—ck with their mother in public assistance records, indicate to me that the children were ba—ck with their mother in provide clear and convincing evidence that Respondent no longer had care and custody of the two children, and that he knowingly provided false information to DHS.

To summarize my findings up to this poi nt, I find th at DHS has presented clear and convincing evidence to establish that the firs t two elements of IPV are met. I now turn to the third element, mental or physical impairment, to see if DHS has established this element as well. Again, havin g reviewed all of the testimony and evidence in this case as a whole, I find nothing in the record to indicate that Respondent has a mental or physical impairment that limit ed his understanding or a bility to be truthful and fulfill h is reporting responsibilities. Therefore I find and conclude that the third IPV element has also been satisfied by DHS by clear and convincing evidence.

In conclusion, based on the findings of fact and c onclusions of la w above, I find and decide that all three of the elements of IPV have been establis hed by clear and convincing evidence, and an IPV of the F AP program occurred in this case. DHS' request for an Administrative Hearing decisi on of IPV of the FAP and SDA programs is GRANTED.

I next turn to the penalty DHS requested in this case, which is a first-time penalty for both IPVs. I find that the record does establish that first-time penalties are appropriate, as there is no allegation that Respondent committed previous IPVs.

Also, DHS is entitled to an order permiting recoupment of the full amount of overissuance, $4,943, as I find and determine that DHS has proved that this amount was overissued to Respondent.

DECISION AND ORDER

The Administrative Law Judge, based on the above findings of fact and conclusions of law, GRANTS DHS' request for a finding of IPV of FAP and SDA. IT IS ORDERED that the penalty for the FAP and SDA IPVs shall be the penalties fo r a first-time offense in each program.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that DHS is ent itled to recoup the FAP overissuance to Respondent of $1,459 and the SDA overissuance of $3,484, totaling $4,943. DHS shall proceed in accordance with all DHS policy and procedure.
