

STATE OF MICHIGAN
MICHIGAN ADMINISTRATIVE HEARING SYSTEM
ADMINISTRATIVE HEARINGS FOR THE
DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES

IN THE MATTER OF:

[REDACTED]

Reg. No: 201264948
Issue No: 2009
Case No: [REDACTED]
Hearing Date: November 7, 2012
Washtenaw County DHS

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE: Christopher S. Saunders

HEARING DECISION

This matter is before the undersigned Administrative Law Judge pursuant to MCL 400.9 and MCL 400.37 upon claimant's request for a hearing. After due notice, a telephone hearing was held on November 7, 2012. The claimant personally appeared and provided testimony as did his mother. Attorney [REDACTED] appeared on behalf of the claimant.

ISSUE

Did the Department of Human Services (the department) properly deny claimant's application for Medical Assistance (MA) and retroactive Medical Assistance benefits?

FINDINGS OF FACT

The Administrative Law Judge, based upon the competent, material and substantial evidence on the whole record, finds as material fact:

1. On March 1, 2012, claimant filed an application for Medical Assistance and retroactive Medical Assistance benefits alleging disability.
2. On May 5, 2012, the Medical Review Team denied claimant's application stating that claimant was capable of performing other work.
3. On June 26, 2012, the department caseworker sent claimant notice that his application was denied.
4. On July 12, 2012, claimant filed a request for a hearing to contest the department's negative action.
5. On August 24, 2012, the State Hearing Review Team again denied claimant's application stating that the claimant retains the capacity to perform a wide range of unskilled work.

6. After the hearing, the record was left open to allow the State Hearing Review Team an opportunity to examine new evidence that was presented at the hearing. Said evidence was subsequently forwarded to the State Hearing Review Team. After review of the newly submitted evidence, the State Hearing Review Team again denied the claimant's application on January 30, 2013 stating that the claimant retains the capacity to perform simple repetitive tasks and citing vocational rule 204.00.
7. On April 18, 2012, [REDACTED] completed a DHS 49D (Psychiatric/Psychological Examination Report) on behalf of the claimant. The claimant was noted to be socially awkward with a long history of mood disorder. It was noted that the claimant had a distant and awkward demeanor, low mood, poor concentration, and was overwhelmed. The claimant was further noted to have good self care and that he goes out to exercise. The claimant was given an Axis I diagnosis of bipolar and Asperger's Syndrome. He was assigned a GAF of 50. (Department Exhibit A pages 22-24).
8. On January 24, 2012, the claimant was seen by [REDACTED] for a follow up examination. He was noted to have mild Asperger's symptoms and a history of bipolar mania. The claimant's mood was reported to be good, his speech and language were within normal limits, and he was noted to have no cognitive problems. The claimant was further noted to be socially engaging, however, some staring out the window and not looking at the examiner were noted. The claimant was also seen by Vivien Hsu, LMSW, on January 23, 2012. His presentation was noted to be less than tangential and his mood was reported to be low and depressed. The claimant was given a diagnosis of bipolar disorder type I and history of attention deficit disorder and Asperger disorder. He was assigned a GAF of 60. (Department Exhibit A pages 34-37).
9. The claimant was seen on February 10, 2011 by [REDACTED] for a follow-up appointment. It was noted that the claimant had recently been discharged from [REDACTED] on February 8, 2011 after a stay of approximately one week addressing agitation, psychosis, and poor sleep. The claimant was noted to have an appropriate affect with the examiner but was defensive and irritable with his mother. It was further noted that the claimant was not inappropriately giddy, his speech was noted to be less rapid, and his communication did have "a slight flavor of very mild grandiosity". On February 1, 2011, the claimant was seen by [REDACTED] where his affect was noted to be anxious and somewhat inappropriately giddy. He was also noted to have rapid speech and a disorganized thought process. The claimant was noted to endorse some paranoid ideation and some very mild grandiosity. On January 4, 2011, the claimant was seen by [REDACTED] who noted that the claimant had increased motor restlessness and some tics. The claimant was also noted to have eye contact that was more intermittent and infrequent than usual. Additionally, the claimant was noted to have a more anxious and accelerated affect, speech that was loud at times, and some inappropriate laughter which appeared to be related to anxiety. (Department Exhibit C).

10. On April 16, 2012, the claimant was seen at the [REDACTED] [REDACTED] for an initial bio-psycho-social assessment. He was noted to have had two inpatient hospitalizations in January 2011 at [REDACTED] and February 2011 at [REDACTED] respectively. The claimant was also noted to have social issues, organizational issues, and trouble advocating for himself. He was assessed as being currently stable as a result of his current medication regiment and was given a diagnosis of bipolar I disorder (with the most recent episode being manic and severe) and Asperger's disorder. (Department Exhibit C).
11. The claimant underwent a psychiatric evaluation at the [REDACTED] [REDACTED] on May 14, 2012 and was given an Axis I diagnosis of bipolar I disorder and Asperger's disorder and assigned a GAF of 60. At his September 14, 2012 medication review, the claimant was assigned a GAF of 60, and at his medication review of October 19, 2012, the claimant was assigned a GAF of 55. (Department Exhibit C).
12. Claimant is a 26 year old man, date of birth [REDACTED]. He stands 6' tall and weighs 205 lbs. He completed high school and received a diploma. He also received a B.S. in earth science from [REDACTED]. He has no additional formal education or training. The claimant is currently working part time as a proctor, but said employment does not amount to substantial gainful activity. The claimant has also worked in the past part time as a cashier/clerical worker.
13. The claimant stated that he had filed an application for Social Security Disability benefits and was denied at application. He testified that he has appealed that determination.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Medical Assistance (MA) program is established by Title XIX of the Social Security Act and is implemented by Title 42 of the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR). The Department of Human Services (DHS or department) administers the MA program pursuant to MCL 400.10, et seq., and MCL 400.105. Department policies are found in the Bridges Administrative Manual (BAM), the Bridges Eligibility Manual (BEM) and the Program Reference Manual (PRM).

Pursuant to Federal Rule 42 CFR 435.540, the Department of Human Services uses the federal Supplemental Security Income (SSI) policy in determining eligibility for disability under the Medical Assistance program. Under SSI, disability is defined as:

...the inability to do any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than 12 months.... 20 CFR 416.905

In general, claimant has the responsibility to prove that he/she is disabled. Claimant's impairment must result from anatomical, physiological, or psychological abnormalities which can be shown by medically acceptable clinical and laboratory diagnostic techniques. A physical or mental impairment must be established by medical evidence consisting of signs, symptoms, and laboratory findings, not only claimant's statement of symptoms. 20 CFR 416.908; 20 CFR 416.927. Proof must be in the form of medical evidence showing that the claimant has an impairment and the nature and extent of its severity. 20 CFR 416.912. Information must be sufficient to enable a determination as to the nature and limiting effects of the impairment for the period in question, the probable duration of the impairment and the residual functional capacity to do work-related physical and mental activities. 20 CFR 416.913.

A set order is used to determine disability. Current work activity, severity of impairments, residual functional capacity, past work, age, or education and work experience is reviewed. If there is a finding that an individual is disabled or not disabled at any point in the review, there will be no further evaluation. 20 CFR 416.920.

At step one, the Administrative Law Judge must determine whether the claimant is engaging in substantial gainful activity (20 CFR 404.1520(b) and 416.920(b)). Substantial gainful activity (SGA) is defined as work activity that is both substantial and gainful. "Substantial work activity" is work activity that involves doing significant physical or mental activities (20 CFR 404.1572(a) and 416.972(a)). "Gainful work activity" is work that is usually done for pay or profit, whether or not a profit is realized (20 CFR 404.1572(b) and 416.972(b)). Generally, if an individual has earnings from employment or self-employment above a specific level set out in the regulations, it is presumed that he/she has demonstrated the ability to engage in SGA (20 CFR 404.1574, 404.1575, 416.974, and 416.975). If an individual engages in SGA, he/she is not disabled regardless of how severe his/her physical or mental impairments are and regardless of his/her age, education, and work experience. If the individual is not engaging in SGA, the analysis proceeds to the second step.

At step two, the Administrative Law Judge must determine whether the claimant has a medically determinable impairment that is "severe" or a combination of impairments that is "severe" and that said impairment(s) have met the duration requirement (20 CFR 404.1520(c) and 416.920(a)(2)(ii) and (c)). An impairment or combination of impairments is "severe" within the meaning of the regulations if it significantly limits an individual's ability to perform basic work activities. An impairment or combination of impairments is "not severe" when medical and other evidence establish only a slight abnormality or a combination of slight abnormalities that would have no more than a minimal effect on an individual's ability to work (20 CFR 404.1521 and 416.921; Social Security Rulings (SSRs) 85-28, 96-3p, and 96-4p). In order for an impairment(s) to meet the duration requirement, the impairment(s) must have lasted or be expected to last for at least 12 months, unless the impairment(s) is expected to result in death (20 CFR 416.909). If the claimant does not have a severe medically determinable impairment or combination of impairments that have met the duration requirement, he/she is not disabled. If the claimant has a severe impairment or combination of impairments that have met the duration requirement, the analysis proceeds to the third step.

Statements about pain or other symptoms do not alone establish disability. There must be medical signs and laboratory findings which demonstrate a medical impairment... 20 CFR 416.929(a).

...Medical reports should include –

- (1) Medical history.
- (2) Clinical findings (such as the results of physical or mental status examinations);
- (3) Laboratory findings (such as blood pressure, X-rays);
- (4) Diagnosis (statement of disease or injury based on its signs and symptoms)... 20 CFR 416.913(b).

In determining disability under the law, the ability to work is measured. An individual's functional capacity for doing basic work activities is evaluated. If an individual has the ability to perform basic work activities without significant limitations, he or she is not considered disabled. 20 CFR 416.994(b)(1)(iv).

Basic work activities are the abilities and aptitudes necessary to do most jobs. Examples of these include --

- (1) Physical functions such as walking, standing, sitting, lifting, pushing, pulling, reaching, carrying, or handling;
- (2) Capacities for seeing, hearing, and speaking;

- (3) Understanding, carrying out, and remembering simple instructions;
- (4) Use of judgment;
- (5) Responding appropriately to supervision, co-workers and usual work situations; and
- (6) Dealing with changes in a routine work setting. 20 CFR 416.921(b).

Medical findings must allow a determination of (1) the nature and limiting effects of your impairment(s) for any period in question; (2) the probable duration of the impairment; and (3) the residual functional capacity to do work-related physical and mental activities. 20 CFR 416.913(d).

Medical evidence may contain medical opinions. Medical opinions are statements from physicians and psychologists or other acceptable medical sources that reflect judgments about the nature and severity of the impairment(s), including your symptoms, diagnosis and prognosis, what an individual can do despite impairment(s), and the physical or mental restrictions. 20 CFR 416.927(a)(2).

All of the evidence relevant to the claim, including medical opinions, is reviewed and findings are made. 20 CFR 416.927(c). A statement by a medical source finding that an individual is "disabled" or "unable to work" does not mean that disability exists for the purposes of the program. 20 CFR 416.927(e).

The Administrative Law Judge is responsible for making the determination or decision about whether the statutory definition of disability is met. The Administrative Law Judge reviews all medical findings and other evidence that support a medical source's statement of disability.... 20 CFR 416.927(e).

At step three, the Administrative Law Judge must determine whether the claimant's impairment or combination of impairments meets or medically equals the criteria of an impairment listed in 20 CFR Part 404, Subpart P, Appendix 1 (20 CFR 404.1520(d), 404.1525, 404.1526, 416.920(d), 416.925, and 416.926). If the claimant's impairment or combination of impairments meets or medically equals the criteria of a listing and meets the duration requirement (20 CFR 404.1509 and 416.909), the claimant is disabled. If it does not, the analysis proceeds to the next step.

Before considering step four of the sequential evaluation process, the Administrative Law Judge must first determine the claimant's residual functional capacity (20 CFR 404.1520(e) and 416.920(e)). An individual's residual functional capacity is his/her ability to do physical and mental work activities on a sustained basis despite limitations from his/her impairments. In making this finding, all of the claimant's impairments, including impairments that are not severe, must be considered (20 CFR 404.1520(e), 404.1545, 416.920(e), and 416.945; SSR 96-8p).

Next, the Administrative Law Judge must determine at step four whether the claimant has the residual functional capacity to perform the requirements of his/her past relevant work (20 CFR 404.1520(f) and 416.920(f)). The term past relevant work means work performed (either as the claimant actually performed it or as it is generally performed in the national economy) within the last 15 years or 15 years prior to the date that disability must be established. In addition, the work must have lasted long enough for the claimant to learn to do the job and have been SGA (20 CFR 404.1560(b), 404.1565, 416.960(b), and 416.965). If the claimant has the residual functional capacity to do his/her past relevant work, the claimant is not disabled. If the claimant is unable to do any past relevant work or does not have any past relevant work, the analysis proceeds to the fifth and last step.

At the last step of the sequential evaluation process (20 CFR 404.1520(g) and 416.920(g)), the Administrative Law Judge must determine whether the claimant is able to do any other work considering his/her residual functional capacity, age, education, and work experience. If the claimant is able to do other work, he/she is not disabled. If the claimant is not able to do other work and meets the duration requirements, he/she is disabled.

To determine the physical demands (exertional requirements) of work in the national economy, we classify jobs as sedentary, light, medium and heavy. These terms have the same meaning as they have in the Dictionary of Occupational Titles, published by the Department of Labor... 20 CFR 416.967.

Sedentary work. Sedentary work involves lifting no more than 10 pounds at a time and occasionally lifting or carrying articles like docket files, ledgers, and small tools. Although a sedentary job is defined as one which involves sitting, a certain amount of walking and standing is often necessary in carrying out job duties. Jobs are sedentary if walking and standing are required occasionally and other sedentary criteria are met. 20 CFR 416.967(a).

Light work. Light work involves lifting no more than 20 pounds at a time with frequent lifting or carrying of objects weighing up to 10 pounds. Even though the weight lifted may be very little, a job is in this category when it requires a good deal of walking or standing, or when it involves sitting most of the time with some pushing and pulling of arm or leg controls.... 20 CFR 416.967(b).

Medium work. Medium work involves lifting no more than 50 pounds at a time with frequent lifting or carrying of objects weighing up to 25 pounds. If someone can do medium work, we determine that he or she can also do sedentary and light work. 20 CFR 416.967(c).

Heavy work. Heavy work involves lifting no more than 100 pounds at a time with frequent lifting or carrying of objects weighing up to 50 pounds. If someone can do heavy work, we determine that he or she can also do medium, light, and sedentary work. 20 CFR 416.967(d).

The law does not require an applicant to be completely symptom free before a finding of lack of disability can be rendered. In fact, if an applicant's symptoms can be managed to the point where substantial gainful activity can be achieved, a finding of not disabled must be rendered.

For mental disorders, severity is assessed in terms of the functional limitations imposed by the impairment. Functional limitations are assessed using the criteria in paragraph (B) of the listings for mental disorders (descriptions of restrictions of activities of daily living, social functioning; concentration, persistence, or pace; and ability to tolerate increased mental demands associated with competitive work).... 20 CFR, Part 404, Subpart P, App. 1, 12.00(C).

In determining how a severe mental impairment affects the client's ability to work, four areas considered to be essential to work are looked at:

...Activities of daily living including adaptive activities such as cleaning, shopping, cooking, taking public transportation, paying bills, maintaining a residence, caring appropriately for one's grooming and hygiene, using telephones and directories, using a post office, etc. 20 CFR, Part 404, Subpart P, App. 1, 12.00(C)(1).

..Social functioning refers to an individual's capacity to interact independently, appropriately, effectively, and on a sustained basis with other individuals. 20 CFR, Part 404, Subpart P, App. 1, 12.00(C)(2).

Social functioning includes the ability to get along with others, such as family members, friends, neighbors, grocery clerks, landlords, or bus drivers. You may demonstrate impaired social functioning by, for example, a history of altercations, evictions, firings, fear of strangers, avoidance of interpersonal relationships, or social isolation. You may exhibit strength in social functioning by such things as your ability to initiate social contacts with others, communicate clearly with others, or interact and actively participate in group activities. We also need to consider cooperative behaviors, consideration for others, awareness of others' feelings, and social maturity. Social functioning in work situations may involve interactions with the public, responding appropriately to persons in authority (e.g., supervisors), or cooperative behaviors involving coworkers. 20 CFR, Part 404, Subpart P, App. 1, 12.00(C)(2).

We do not define “marked” by a specific number of different behaviors in which social functioning is impaired, but by the nature and overall degree of interference with function. For example, if you are highly antagonistic, uncooperative or hostile but are tolerated by local storekeepers, we may nevertheless find that you have a marked limitation in social functioning because that behavior is not acceptable in other social contexts. 20 CFR, Part 404, Subpart P, App. 1, 12.00(C)(2).

...Concentration, persistence or pace refers to the ability to sustain focused attention and concentration sufficiently long to permit the timely and appropriate completion of tasks commonly found in work settings. 20 CFR, Part 404, Subpart P, App. 1, 12.00(C)(3).

Limitations in concentration, persistence, or pace are best observed in work settings, but may also be reflected by limitations in other settings. In addition, major limitations in this area can often be assessed through clinical examination or psychological testing. Wherever possible, however, a mental status examination or psychological test data should be supplemented by other available evidence. 20 CFR, Part 404, Subpart P, App. 1, 12.00(C)(3).

Episodes of decompensation are exacerbations or temporary increases in symptoms or signs accompanied by a loss of adaptive functioning, as manifested by difficulties in performing activities of daily living, maintaining social relationships, or maintaining concentration, persistence, or pace. 20 CFR 404, Subpart P, App. 1, 12.00(C)(4).

Episodes of decompensation may be demonstrated by an exacerbation in symptoms or signs that would ordinarily require increased treatment or a less stressful situation (or a combination of the two). Episodes of decompensation may be inferred from medical records showing significant alteration in medication; or documentation of the need for a more structured psychological support system (e.g., hospitalizations, placement in a halfway house, or a highly structured and directing household); or other relevant information in the record about the existence, severity, and duration of the episode. 20 CFR 404, Subpart P, App. 1, 12.00(C)(4).

The evaluation of disability on the basis of a mental disorder requires sufficient evidence to: (1) establish the presence of a medically determinable mental impairment(s); (2) assess the degree of functional limitation the impairment(s) imposes; and (3) project the probable duration of the impairment(s). Medical evidence must be sufficiently complete and detailed as to symptoms, signs, and laboratory findings to permit an independent determination. In addition, we will consider information from other sources when we determine how the established impairment(s) affects your ability to function. We will consider all relevant evidence in your case record. 20 CFR 404, Subpart P, App. 1, 12.00(D).

When we rate the degree of limitation in the first three functional areas (activities of daily living; social functioning; and concentration, persistence, or pace), we will use the following five-point scale: none, slight, moderate, marked, and extreme. When we rate the degree of limitation in the fourth functional area (episodes of decompensation), we will use the following four-point scale: none, one or two, three, four or more. The last is incompatible with the ability to do any gainful activity. 20 CFR 416.920a(c).

After we rate the degree of functional limitation resulting from the impairment(s), we will determine the severity of your mental impairment(s). 20 CFR 416.920a(d).

If we rate the degree of your limitation in the first three functional areas as “none” or “mild” and “none” in the fourth area, we will generally conclude that your impairment(s) is not severe, unless the evidence otherwise indicates that there is more than a minimal limitation in your ability to do any basic work activities. 20 CFR 416.920a(d)(1).

If your mental impairment(s) is severe, we will then determine if it meets or is equivalent in severity to a listed mental disorder. We do this by comparing the diagnostic medical findings about your impairment(s) and the rating of the degree of functional limitation to the criteria of the appropriate listed mental disorder. 20 CFR 416.920a(d)(2).

If we find that you have a severe mental impairment(s) that neither meets nor is equivalent in severity to any listing, we will then assess your residual functional capacity. 20 CFR 416.920a(d)(3).

At Step 1, claimant is currently working, but is only working part time and does not rise to the level of substantial gainful employment (SGA). As the claimant is not engaging in SGA, he is not precluded from a finding of disability at Step 1. Accordingly, the Administrative Law Judge will proceed with the sequential evaluation process.

At Step 2, the claimant's symptoms are evaluated to see if there is an underlying medically determinable physical or mental impairment(s) that could reasonably be expected to produce the claimant's pain or other symptoms and has met the durational requirement. This must be shown by medically acceptable clinical and laboratory diagnostic techniques. Once an underlying physical or mental impairment(s) has been shown, the Administrative Law Judge must evaluate the intensity, persistence, and limiting effects of the claimant's symptoms to determine the extent to which they limit the claimant's ability to do basic work activities. For this purpose, whenever statements about the intensity, persistence, or functionally limiting effects of pain or other symptoms are not substantiated by objective medical evidence, a finding on the credibility of the statements based on a consideration of the entire case record must be made.

This Administrative Law Judge finds that the objective medical evidence of record does support the claimant's contention that he is suffering from a severe mental impairment that has lasted for 12 months. The objective medical evidence of record shows claimant's impairments do meet the de minimus level of severity and duration required for further analysis. The claimant is therefore not precluded from a finding of disability at Step 2. The Administrative Law Judge will then proceed with the sequential evaluation.

The analysis then proceeds to Step 3. The objective medical evidence of record does not support a finding that claimant's diagnosed impairments, standing alone or combined, are severe enough to meet or equal any specifically listed impairments; consequently, the analysis must continue.

At Step 4, it must be determined whether or not claimant has the ability to perform his past relevant work. The claimant does not have a history of past relevant work. Past relevant work is work that was performed within the last fifteen years, lasted long enough for the claimant to learn how to do it, and was substantial gainful activity (20 CFR 404.1565). Based on the testimony of the claimant and the evidence contained in the record, the claimant does not have a past work history during the last 15 years that rises to the level of substantial gainful activity. The claimant does have some work experience, but that work experience does not rise to the level necessary to constitute substantial gainful employment. Accordingly, because the claimant does not have a past relevant work history, there cannot be an analysis of Step 4. Consequently, the claimant cannot be found to be precluded from a finding of disability at Step 4, and the Administrative Law Judge will proceed with the sequential evaluation to determine the claimant's residual functional capacity.

At Step 5, this Administrative Law Judge must determine whether or not claimant has the residual functional capacity to perform some other jobs in the national economy. At this point in the analysis, the burden shifts from the Claimant to the Department to present proof that the Claimant has the residual capacity to substantial gainful employment. 20 CFR 416.960(2); Richardson v Sec of Health and Human Services, 735 F2d 962, 964 (CA 6, 1984). This Administrative Law Judge finds that the objective medical evidence on the record does not support the finding that the claimant still retains the residual functional capacity to perform other work.

The claimant's treating psychiatrist, [REDACTED], completed a mental residual functional capacity assessment for the claimant on April 18, 2012 (see Department Exhibit A pages 25-26). In this assessment, [REDACTED] opines that the claimant has moderate limitations in the areas of understanding and memory. He further opined that the claimant has marked limitations in the areas of sustained concentration and persistence, social interaction, and in the ability to respond appropriately to change in the work setting. Additionally, [REDACTED] completed an assessment of the claimant's ability to perform work related activities on March 14, 2012 (see Department Exhibit D). In this assessment, [REDACTED] finds that the claimant has moderately severe difficulty in maintaining social functioning and present deficiencies of concentration, persistence, or pace resulting in frequent failure to complete tasks in a timely manner. [REDACTED] further stated that he does not think the claimant has the capability of performing a sedentary low stress job on a 40 hour work week on a regular and sustained basis. He stated that he felt that the claimant may be able to function in a protected work environment, but that the claimant has not been tested in such an environment.

20 CFR 404.1527(d)(2) states that a treating source opinion is given controlling weight if said opinion is supported by well supported by medically acceptable clinical and laboratory diagnostic techniques and is not inconsistent with the other objective medical evidence on the record. As such, this Administrative Law Judge gives great weight to the opinions of [REDACTED] and finds that said opinions are not contradicted by the objective medical evidence contained in the record and are supported by acceptable clinical and laboratory diagnostic techniques. Therefore, this Administrative Law Judge finds that the claimant has marked restrictions in the areas of social functioning, maintaining concentration, persistence, and pace, and in the area of adapting to changes in the work setting.

20 CFR, Part 404, Subpart P, App. 1, 12.00(C) states that in determining mental residual functional capacity the areas of social functioning and the ability to maintain concentration, persistence and pace are two of the four areas that must be examined to determine the claimant's mental residual functional capacity. Because this Administrative Law Judge finds that the claimant has marked restrictions in both of these categories, the claimant does not have the mental residual functional capacity to perform substantial gainful activity. As such, the claimant meets the standard for MA-P according to the statute.

DECISION AND ORDER

The Administrative Law Judge, based upon the above findings of fact and conclusions of law, decides that the claimant meets the MA-P disability standard.

Accordingly, the department's decision is REVERSED.

It is HEREBY ORDERED that the department shall process the claimant's March 1, 2012 MA/Retro-MA application, and shall award him all the benefits he may be entitled to receive, as long as he meets the remaining financial and non-financial eligibility factors. The department shall review his eligibility for disability benefits in one year from the date this decision and order is mailed.
