Reg. No.: 2013-20857
Issue No.: 2009, 4031
Case No.: [redacted]
Hearing Date: April 25, 2013
County: Wayne (82-41)

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE: Jonathan W. Owens

HEARING DECISION

This matter is before the undersigned Administrative Law Judge pursuant to MCL 400.9 and MCL 400.37 following Claimant's request for a hearing. After due notice, telephone hearing was held on April 25, 2013, from Detroit, Michigan. Participants on behalf of Claimant included the Claimant and [redacted]. Participants on behalf of the Department of Human Services (Department) included [redacted].

ISSUE

Whether the Department properly determined that Claimant is not "disabled" for purposes of the Medical Assistance (MA-P) and State Disability Assistance (SDA) programs?

FINDINGS OF FACT

The Administrative Law Judge, based upon the competent, material and substantial evidence on the whole record, finds as material fact:

1. Claimant was receiving MA-P and SDA in error. The Department determined a re-process date of September 1, 2012.

2. On December 6, 2012, the Medical Review Team denied Claimant's request.

3. On March 4, 2013, Claimant submitted to the Department a request for hearing.

4. The State Hearing Review Team (SHRT) denied Claimant's request.

5. Claimant is 49 years old.

6. Claimant completed education through the 8th grade.

7. Claimant has no employment experience in the last 15 years.

8. Claimant's limitations have lasted for 12 months or more.

9. Claimant suffers from traumatic brain injury, insomnia, acute anemia, cerebral aneurysm in [redacted] chronic lower back pain, hepatitis C, osteoarthritis, depression, headaches, COPD and seizures.

10. Claimant has some limitations on physical activities involving sitting, standing, walking, bending, lifting, and stooping.

11. Claimant has some limitations on understanding, carrying out, and remembering simple instructions; use of judgment; responding appropriately to supervision, co-workers and usual work situations; and dealing with changes in a routine work setting.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

MA-P is established by Title XIX of the Social Security Act and is implemented by Title 42 of the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR). The Department administers MA-P pursuant to MCL 400.10, et seq., and MCL 400.105. Department policies are found in the Bridges Administrative Manual (BAM), the Bridges Eligibility Manual (BEM) and the Bridges Reference Manual (RFT).

The SDA program, which provides financial assistance for disabled persons, is established by 2004 PA 344. The Department administers the SDA program pursuant to MCL 400.10, et seq., and MAC R 400.3151-400.3180. Department policies are found in BAM, BEM and RFT.

The Department conforms to State statute in administering the SDA program.

> 2000 PA 294, Sec. 604, of the statute states:
> Sec. 604. (1) The department shall operate a state disability assistance program. Except as provided in subsection (3), persons eligible for this program shall include needy citizens of the United States or aliens exempted from the supplemental security income citizenship requirement who are at least 18 years of age or emancipated minors meeting 1 or more of the following requirements:

> (a) A recipient of supplemental security income, social security, or medical assistance due to disability or 65 years of age or older.
> (b) A person with a physical or mental impairment which meets federal supplemental security income disability standards, except that the minimum duration of the disability shall be 90 days. Substance abuse alone is not defined as a basis for eligibility.

Pursuant to Federal Rule 42 CFR 435.540, the Department uses the Federal Supplemental Security Income (SSI) policy in determining eligibility for disability under MA-P. Under SSI, disability is defined as:

> ...the inability to do any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than 12 months.... 20 CFR 416.905.

A set order is used to determine disability. Current work activity, severity of impairments, residual functional capacity, past work, age, or education and work experience are reviewed. If there is a finding that an individual is disabled or not disabled at any point in the review, there will be no further evaluation. 20 CFR 416.920.

Medical evidence may contain medical opinions. Medical opinions are statements from physicians and psychologists or other acceptable medical sources that reflect judgments about the nature and severity of the impairment(s), including symptoms, diagnosis and prognosis, what an individual can do despite impairment(s), and the physical or mental restrictions. 20 CFR 416.927(a)(2).

The Administrative Law Judge is responsible for making the determination or decision about whether the statutory definition of disability is met. The Administrative Law Judge reviews all medical findings and other evidence that support a medical source's statement of disability. 20 CFR 416.927(e).

For mental disorders, severity is assessed in terms of the functional limitations imposed by the impairment. Functional limitations are assessed using the criteria in paragraph (B) of the listings for mental disorders (descriptions of restrictions of activities of daily living, social functioning; concentration, persistence or pace; and ability to tolerate increased mental demands associated with competitive work). 20 CFR, Part 404, Subpart P, Appendix 1, 12.00(C).

The residual functional capacity is what an individual can do despite limitations. All impairments will be considered in addition to ability to meet certain demands of jobs in the national economy. Physical demands, mental demands, sensory requirements and other functions will be evaluated. 20 CFR 416.945(a).

To determine the physical demands (exertional requirements) of work in the national economy, we classify jobs as sedentary, light, medium and heavy. These terms have the same meaning as they have in the Dictionary of Occupational Titles, published by the Department of Labor. 20 CFR 416.967.

Pursuant to 20 CFR 416.920, a five-step sequential evaluation process is used to determine disability. An individual's current work activity, the severity of the impairment, the residual functional capacity, past work, age, education and work experience are evaluated. If an individual is found disabled or not disabled at any point, no further review is made.

The first step is to determine if an individual is working and if that work is "substantial gainful activity" (SGA). If the work is SGA, an individual is not considered disabled regardless of medical condition, age or other vocational factors. 20 CFR 416.920(b).

Secondly, the individual must have a medically determinable impairment that is "severe" or a combination of impairments that is "severe." 20 CFR 404.1520(c). An impairment or combination of impairments is "severe" within the meaning of regulations if it significantly limits an individual's ability to perform basic work activities. An impairment or combination of impairments is "not severe" when medical and other evidence establish only a slight abnormality or a combination of slight abnormalities that would have no more than a minimal effect on an individual's ability to work. 20 CFR 404.1521; Social Security Rulings (SSRs) 85-28, 96-3p, and 96-4p. If the claimant does not have a severe medically determinable impairment or combination of impairments, he/she is not disabled. If the claimant has a severe impairment or combination of impairments, the analysis proceeds to the third step.

The third step in the process is to assess whether the impairment or combination of impairments meets a Social Security listing. If the impairment or combination of impairments meets or is the medically equivalent of a listed impairment as set forth in Appendix 1 and meets the durational requirements of 20 CFR 404.1509, the individual is considered disabled. If it does not, the analysis proceeds to the next step.

Before considering step four of the sequential evaluation process, the trier must determine the claimant's residual functional capacity. 20 CFR 404.1520(e). An individual's residual functional capacity is his/her ability to do physical and mental work activities on a sustained basis despite limitations from his/her impairments. In making this finding, the trier must consider all of the claimant's impairments, including impairments that are not severe. 20 CFR 404.1520(e) and 404.1545; SSR 96-8p.

The fourth step of the process is whether the claimant has the residual functional capacity to perform the requirements of his/her past relevant work. 20 CFR 404.1520(f). The term past relevant work means work performed (either as the claimant actually performed it or as is it generally performed in the national economy) within the last 15 years or 15 years prior to the date that disability must be established. If the claimant has the residual functional capacity to do his/her past relevant work, then the claimant is not disabled. If the claimant is unable to do any past relevant work or does not have any past relevant work, the analysis proceeds to the fifth step.

In the fifth step, an individual's residual functional capacity is considered in determining whether disability exists. An individual's age, education, work experience and skills are used to evaluate whether an individual has the residual functional capacity to perform work despite limitations. 20 CFR 416.920(e).

Here, Claimant has satisfied requirements as set forth in steps one, two and three of the sequential evaluation. However, Claimant's impairments do not meet a listing as set forth in Appendix 1, 20 CFR 416.926. Therefore, vocational factors will be considered to determine Claimant's residual functional capacity to do relevant work.

In the present case, Claimant has been diagnosed with traumatic brain injury, insomnia, acute anemia, cerebral aneurysm in [redacted] chronic lower back pain, hepatitis C, osteoarthritis, depression, headaches, COPD and seizures. Claimant was examined in [redacted]. The exam note indicates that Claimant, since being compliant with treatment instituted in [redacted], has not had any episodes or seizures according to Claimant's self-reporting. Claimant's EEG results revealed no evidence of epileptiform discharge; however, there were notations of occasional broad-based left temporal sharp and slow waves. During an [redacted], exam, Claimant's gait was noted to be a slow antalgic gait. However, the office note indicates that following the exam, Claimant was seen walking without any signs of ataxia or any abnormalities. On [redacted], Claimant was seen at [redacted] complaining of a possible seizure. Claimant stated he was medication compliant and his serum levels were found to be within normal limits. Claimant did admit to drinking prior to his seizure.

Claimant's treating physician noted on [redacted], Claimant's complaints of lumbrosacral tenderness, tremors of bilateral upper extremities and noted his sad effect and confusion. This physician noted Claimant's appearance showed acute distress and he was unkempt. This physician noted Claimant's condition was deteriorating and he was unable to meet his own needs in his home. Specifically, he noted that Claimant needed help with medication reminders and activities of daily living.

The restrictions imposed by this physician are not supported by acceptable medical evidence consisting of clinical signs, symptoms, laboratory or test findings, or evaluative techniques and are not consistent with other substantial evidence in the report. Claimant's physician did not present sufficient medical evidence to support his opinion. The evidence presented failed to support the position that Claimant is incapable of a full range of sedentary work activities. See 20 CFR 416.927c (2) and .927d(3) and (4).

Claimant testified to the following symptoms and abilities: seizures occurring at least three times a month (body tenses up, foams at the mouth, he gets confused, not able to comprehend what people are saying, memory loss, falls down and occasional loss of bladder control), he is compliant with his seizure medication, no strength, does not feel good, does not like to leave his home, can stand 15 minutes, no issues with sitting, no medical restriction on the amount of weight he can lift, exertion causes him to have seizures, no issue with grip and grasp, not able to bend and stoop, problems with balance, can walk a block, needs help with household chores, able to manage personal care, he does need reminders to take showers, needs help with grocery shopping, not able to drive, always tired, poor sleep, he is not interested in food, worries a lot, loss of interest in all activities, suicidal thoughts occurring daily, isolates himself from others, avoids crowds and other people, has vision problems,

Claimant's witness testified to witnessing seizures and testified Claimant needs reminders to take medications, to take care of hygiene and to eat.

While the testimony given by Claimant and his witness indicates a severe impairment on Claimant's ability to perform basic living activities, there is a lack of acceptable objective medical evidence to support the severity testified to suffering. The objective medical evidence fails to demonstrate a marked restriction on daily activities.

The fourth step of the analysis to be considered is whether the claimant has the ability to perform work previously performed by the claimant within the past 15 years. The trier of fact must determine whether the impairment(s) presented prevent the claimant from doing past relevant work. In the present case, during the hearing, Claimant indicated he had no substantial gainful employment in the last 15 years. However, Claimant's earnings records included in the SHRT packet, Exhibit 2, indicate that Claimant did work in 1998 at an SGA level. Claimant's reported employment was at a tire service company. Since no testimony was taken to demonstrate the level of mental physical difficulties and since there is no evidence to demonstrate the level of difficulty, this Administrative Law Judge is unable to fully determine whether Claimant could perform the rigors of such a position. Therefore, in light of the lack of testimony and evidence, this Administrative Law Judge will presume Claimant is not capable of his past employment and proceed to the final step of the analysis. 20 CFR 416.920(e).

In the final step of the analysis, the trier of fact must determine if the claimant's impairment(s) prevent the claimant from doing other work. 20 CFR 416.920(f). This determination is based upon the claimant's:

1. residual functional capacity defined simply as "what can you still do despite your limitations?" 20 CFR 416.945;
2. age, education, and work experience, 20 CFR 416.963-965; and
3. the kinds of work which exist in significant numbers in the national economy which the claimant could perform despite her limitations. 20 CFR 416.966.

The residual functional capacity is what an individual can do despite limitations. All impairments will be considered in addition to ability to meet certain demands of jobs in the national economy. Physical demands, mental demands, sensory requirements and other functions will be evaluated. 20 CFR 416.945(a).

To determine the physical demands (exertional requirements) of work in the national economy, we classify jobs as sedentary, light, medium and heavy. These terms have the same meaning as they have in the Dictionary of Occupational Titles, published by the Department of Labor. 20 CFR 416.967.

> Sedentary work. Sedentary work involves lifting no more than 10 pounds at a time and occasionally lifting or carrying articles like docket files, ledgers, and small tools. Although a sedentary job is defined as one which involves sitting, a certain amount of walking and standing is often necessary in carrying out job duties. Jobs are sedentary if walking and standing are required occasionally and other sedentary criteria are met. 20 CFR 416.967(a).
> Light work. Light work involves lifting no more than 20 pounds at a time with frequent lifting or carrying of objects weighing up to 10 pounds. Even though the weight lifted may be very little; a job is in this category when it requires a good deal of walking or standing, or when it involves sitting most of the time with some pushing and pulling of arm or leg controls. 20 CFR 416.967(b).
>
> Medium work. Medium work involves lifting no more than 50 pounds at a time with frequent lifting or carrying of objects weighing up to 25 pounds. If someone can do medium work, we determine that he or she can also do sedentary and light work. 20 CFR 416.967(c).
> Heavy work. Heavy work involves lifting no more than 100 pounds at a time with frequent lifting or carrying of objects weighing up to 50 pounds. If someone can do heavy work, we determine that he or she can also do medium, light, and sedentary work. 20 CFR 416.967(d).

See Felton v DSS 161 Mich App 690, 696 (1987). Once the claimant makes it to the final step of the analysis, the claimant has already established a prima facie case of disability. Richardson v Secretary of Health and Human Services, 735 F2d 962 (6th Cir, 1984). Moving forward, the burden of proof rests with the State to prove by substantial evidence that the claimant has the residual function capacity for SGA.

This Administrative Law Judge finds that Claimant has the residual functional capacity to perform work at least at a sedentary level. The records and evidence submitted fail to demonstrate Claimant's impairments are such that Claimant would be incapable of at least sedentary employment.

Claimant is an individual of younger age. 20 CFR 416.963. Claimant has a limited education. 20 CFR 416.964. Claimant's previous work was unskilled. Federal Rule 20 CFR 404, Subpart P, Appendix 2, contains specific profiles for determining disability based on residual functional capacity and vocational profiles. Under Table I, Rule 201.18, Claimant is not disabled for purposes of the Medical Assistance and State Disability Assistance programs.

DECISION AND ORDER

The Administrative Law Judge, based upon the above findings of fact and conclusions of law, decides that Claimant is not medically disabled.

Accordingly, the Department's decision is hereby UPHELD.
