HEARING DECISION

Following Claimant's request for a hearing, this matter is before the undersigned Administrative Law Judge pursuant to MCL 400.9 and 400.37; 42 CFR 431.200 to 431.250; and 45 CFR 205.10. After due notice, an in-person hearing was held on March 17, 2014, from Pontiac, Michigan. Participants on behalf of Claimant included Claimant, ██████████
████████████████████ Participants on behalf of the Department of Human Services (Department) included ██████████

ISSUE

Whether the Department properly determined that Claimant is not "disabled" for purposes of the Medical Assistance (MA-P) program?

FINDINGS OF FACT

The Administrative Law Judge, based upon the competent, material and substantial evidence on the whole record, finds as material fact:

1. On April 9, 2013, Claimant applied for MA-P and retro MA-P to March 2013.
2. On June 28, 2013, the Medical Review Team denied Claimant's request.
3. On September 24, 2013, Claimant submitted to the Department a request for hearing.
4. The State Hearing Review Team (SHRT) denied Claimant's request.
5. Claimant is 44 years old.

6. Claimant completed education through the 9th grade.
7. Claimant has employment experience (last worked 2011) as a baker, which required her to stand/walk the majority of the shift, limited sitting and lifting up to 50 pounds. Claimant performed childcare work, which required a split between standing/walking and sitting, and lifting up to 25 pounds. She also worked as a housekeeper, which required her to stand/walk the majority of the shift, limited sitting and lifting up to 25 pounds.
8. Claimant's limitations have lasted for 12 months or more.
9. Claimant suffers from hypertension, heart disease, fibromyalgia, mood disorder and major depression recurrent severe with psychosis.
10. Claimant has some limitations on physical activities involving sitting, standing, walking, bending, lifting, and stooping.
11. Claimant has some limitations on understanding, carrying out, and remembering simple instructions; use of judgment; responding appropriately to supervision, co-workers and usual work situations; and dealing with changes in a routine work setting.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Medical Assistance (MA) program is established by the Title XIX of the Social Security Act, 42 USC 1396-1396w-5, and is implemented by 42 CFR 400.200 to 1008.59. The Department of Human Services (formerly known as the Family Independence Agency) administers the MA program pursuant to MCL 400.10 and MCL 400.105. Department policies are found in the Bridges Administrative Manual (BAM), the Bridges Eligibility Manual (BEM) and the Bridges Reference Manual (RFT).

Pursuant to Federal Rule 42 CFR 435.540, the Department uses the Federal Supplemental Security Income (SSI) policy in determining eligibility for disability under MA-P. Under SSI, disability is defined as:

...the inability to do any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than 12 months.... 20 CFR 416.905.

A set order is used to determine disability. Current work activity, severity of impairments, residual functional capacity, past work, age, or education and work experience are reviewed. If there is a finding that an individual is disabled or not disabled at any point in the review, there will be no further evaluation. 20 CFR 416.920.

Medical evidence may contain medical opinions. Medical opinions are statements from physicians and psychologists or other acceptable medical sources that reflect judgments about the nature and severity of the impairment(s), including symptoms, diagnosis and prognosis, what an individual can do despite impairment(s), and the physical or mental restrictions. 20 CFR 416.927(a)(2).

The Administrative Law Judge is responsible for making the determination or decision about whether the statutory definition of disability is met. The Administrative Law Judge reviews all medical findings and other evidence that support a medical source's statement of disability. 20 CFR 416.927(e).

For mental disorders, severity is assessed in terms of the functional limitations imposed by the impairment. Functional limitations are assessed using the criteria in paragraph (B) of the listings for mental disorders (descriptions of restrictions of activities of daily living, social functioning; concentration, persistence or pace; and ability to tolerate increased mental demands associated with competitive work). 20 CFR, Part 404, Subpart P, Appendix 1, 12.00(C).

The residual functional capacity is what an individual can do despite limitations. All impairments will be considered in addition to ability to meet certain demands of jobs in the national economy. Physical demands, mental demands, sensory requirements and other functions will be evaluated. 20 CFR 416.945(a).

To determine the physical demands (exertional requirements) of work in the national economy, we classify jobs as sedentary, light, medium and heavy. These terms have the same meaning as they have in the Dictionary of Occupational Titles, published by the Department of Labor. 20 CFR 416.967.

Pursuant to 20 CFR 416.920, a five-step sequential evaluation process is used to determine disability. An individual's current work activity, the severity of the impairment, the residual functional capacity, past work, age, education and work experience are evaluated. If an individual is found disabled or not disabled at any point, no further review is made.

The first step is to determine if an individual is working and if that work is "substantial gainful activity" (SGA). If the work is SGA, an individual is not considered disabled regardless of medical condition, age or other vocational factors. 20 CFR 416.920(b).

Secondly, the individual must have a medically determinable impairment that is "severe" or a combination of impairments that is "severe." 20 CFR 404.1520(c). An impairment or combination of impairments is "severe" within the meaning of regulations if it significantly limits an individual's ability to perform basic work activities. An impairment or combination of impairments is "not severe" when medical and other evidence establish only a slight abnormality or a combination of slight abnormalities that would have no more than a minimal effect on an individual's ability to work. 20 CFR 404.1521;

Social Security Rulings (SSRs) 85-28, 96-3p, and 96-4p. If the claimant does not have a severe medically determinable impairment or combination of impairments, he/she is not disabled. If the claimant has a severe impairment or combination of impairments, the analysis proceeds to the third step.

The third step in the process is to assess whether the impairment or combination of impairments meets a Social Security listing. If the impairment or combination of impairments meets or is the medically equivalent of a listed impairment as set forth in Appendix 1 and meets the durational requirements of 20 CFR 404.1509, the individual is considered disabled. If it does not, the analysis proceeds to the next step.

Before considering step four of the sequential evaluation process, the trier must determine the claimant's residual functional capacity. 20 CFR 404.1520(e). An individual's residual functional capacity is his/her ability to do physical and mental work activities on a sustained basis despite limitations from his/her impairments. In making this finding, the trier must consider all of the claimant's impairments, including impairments that are not severe. 20 CFR 404.1520(e) and 404.1545; SSR 96-8p.

The fourth step of the process is whether the claimant has the residual functional capacity to perform the requirements of his/her past relevant work. 20 CFR 404.1520(f). The term past relevant work means work performed (either as the claimant actually performed it or as is it generally performed in the national economy) within the last 15 years or 15 years prior to the date that disability must be established. If the claimant has the residual functional capacity to do his/her past relevant work, then the claimant is not disabled. If the claimant is unable to do any past relevant work or does not have any past relevant work, the analysis proceeds to the fifth step.

In the fifth step, an individual's residual functional capacity is considered in determining whether disability exists. An individual's age, education, work experience and skills are used to evaluate whether an individual has the residual functional capacity to perform work despite limitations. 20 CFR 416.920(e).

Here, Claimant has satisfied requirements as set forth in steps one, two and three of the sequential evaluation. However, Claimant's impairments do not meet a listing as set forth in Appendix 1, 20 CFR 416.926. Therefore, vocational factors will be considered to determine Claimant's residual functional capacity to do relevant work.

In the present case, Claimant has been diagnosed with hypertension, heart disease, fibromyalgia, mood disorder and major depression recurrent severe with psychosis. Claimant has a number of symptoms and limitations, as cited above, as a result of these conditions. Claimant was treated in [REDACTED] for right-sided pain and left knee pain. She admitted to occasional alcohol use. Claimant was found to be alert and oriented x3 and had appropriate mood and affect. Claimant was found to be normal in all exam areas except for musculoskeletal in which the notes indicated tenderness in the mid thoracic spine. No joint tenderness of the cervical or lumbar spine. She was able to flex her left knee joint without any difficulty. Muscle strength in both her upper and lower extremities was equal at 5/5. She was diagnosed with a thoracic strain, rib contusion, left knee strain and hypertension. She was released in stable condition.

██████████, Claimant was admitted with a headache, dizziness, blurred vision and chest pain. She was noted to not having been compliant with her blood pressure medications. Her blood pressure was 216/127 in the emergency room. Her lungs were clear with no rales, rhonchi or wheezing. No murmurs were noted during a cardiac exam. Her pulses were strong in both her upper and lower extremities. She was determined to have suffered a hypertensive emergency secondary to medical noncompliance, chest pain, obesity, tobacco abuse and fibromyalgia.

Claimant's mental status records from ██████████ and ██████████ indicated no loosening of associations of speech. Speech was normal; no formal thought disorder; and affect was normal. Claimant admitted to auditory hallucinations but was not able to describe the content of the hallucinations. She was diagnosed as suffering with mood disorder, major depression disorder-recurrent-severe-with psychosis.

Claimant testified to the following symptoms and abilities: back pain running from neck down to her feet, suicidal thoughts, thoughts of hurting other people, will skip meals, will isolate herself, hears voices, chest pains, can walk 3 blocks, headaches all the time, dizziness occurring when she stands up, hard for her to read due to vision getting blurry, can sit 15 minutes, can stand 5 minutes, has issues with gripping and grasping items, avoids lifting any weight, she doesn't have a medical restriction on lifting, needs help with household chores, able to manage personal care, she has issues with being unstable, doesn't shower regularly due to fears of falling, needs help with grocery shopping, anger outbursts, crying spells occurring weekly, believes her medications make her mellow but also make her feel vulnerable to others taking advantage of her, paranoid thoughts, large crowds cause her to be nervous and result in her acting out and noises cause her to hear voices.

The testimony provided by Claimant regarding her restrictions on daily living abilities and the degree of symptomology is simply not supported by the objective medical evidence provided. Claimant is alleging a far greater impact on her abilities than the medical evidence would support.

The fourth step of the analysis to be considered is whether the claimant has the ability to perform work previously performed by the claimant within the past 15 years. The trier of fact must determine whether the impairment(s) presented prevent the claimant from doing past relevant work. In the present case, Claimant's past employment was as a baker which required her to stand/walk the majority of the shift, limited sitting and lifting up to 50 pounds. She also performed childcare work, which required a split between standing/walking and sitting, and lifting up to 25 pounds. She also worked as a housekeeper, which required her to stand/walk the majority of the shift, limited sitting and lifting up to 25 pounds. Given Claimant's psychiatric concerns, working with children would likely be inappropriate. However, Claimant would appear capable of managing her past employment as a housekeeper and baker. This Administrative Law

Judge finds, based on the medical evidence and objective, physical, and psychological findings, that Claimant is capable of the physical or mental activities required to perform work as a housekeeper and a baker. 20 CFR 416.920(e). While Claimant is found not disabled at this step, this Administrative Law Judge will continue through the final step of the analysis.

In the final step of the analysis, the trier of fact must determine if the claimant's impairment(s) prevent the claimant from doing other work. 20 CFR 416.920(f). This determination is based upon the claimant's:

1. residual functional capacity defined simply as "what can you still do despite your limitations?" 20 CFR 416.945;
2. age, education, and work experience, 20 CFR 416.963-965; and
3. the kinds of work which exist in significant numbers in the national economy which the claimant could perform despite her limitations. 20 CFR 416.966.

The residual functional capacity is what an individual can do despite limitations. All impairments will be considered in addition to ability to meet certain demands of jobs in the national economy. Physical demands, mental demands, sensory requirements and other functions will be evaluated. 20 CFR 416.945(a).

To determine the physical demands (exertional requirements) of work in the national economy, we classify jobs as sedentary, light, medium and heavy. These terms have the same meaning as they have in the Dictionary of Occupational Titles, published by the Department of Labor. 20 CFR 416.967.

Sedentary work. Sedentary work involves lifting no more than 10 pounds at a time and occasionally lifting or carrying articles like docket files, ledgers, and small tools. Although a sedentary job is defined as one which involves sitting, a certain amount of walking and standing is often necessary in carrying out job duties. Jobs are sedentary if walking and standing are required occasionally and other sedentary criteria are met. 20 CFR 416.967(a).

Light work. Light work involves lifting no more than 20 pounds at a time with frequent lifting or carrying of objects weighing up to 10 pounds. Even though the weight lifted may be very little; a job is in this category when it requires a good deal of walking or standing, or when it involves sitting most of the time with some pushing and pulling of arm or leg controls. 20 CFR 416.967(b).

Medium work. Medium work involves lifting no more than 50 pounds at a time with frequent lifting or carrying of objects weighing up to 25 pounds. If someone can do medium work, we determine that he or she can also do sedentary and light work. 20 CFR 416.967(c).

Heavy work. Heavy work involves lifting no more than 100 pounds at a time with frequent lifting or carrying of objects weighing up to 50 pounds. If someone can do heavy work, we determine that he or she can also do medium, light, and sedentary work. 20 CFR 416.967(d).

See Felton v DSS 161 Mich App 690, 696 (1987). Once the claimant makes it to the final step of the analysis, the claimant has already established a prima facie case of disability. Richardson v Secretary of Health and Human Services, 732 F2d 962 (6th Cir, 1984). Moving forward, the burden of proof rests with the State to prove by substantial evidence that the claimant has the residual function capacity for SGA.

This Administrative Law Judge finds that Claimant has the residual functional capacity to perform work at a medium work level. Claimant has not presented sufficient mental health evidence that would demonstrate a marked mental impairment that would prevent basic work activities. While Claimant has a significant mental health condition, the evidence fails to demonstrate she would be incapable of performing simple unskilled work.

Claimant is an individual of younger age. 20 CFR 416.963. Claimant has a 9th grade education. 20 CFR 416.964. Claimant's previous work was unskilled. Federal Rule 20 CFR 404, Subpart P, Appendix 2, contains specific profiles for determining disability based on residual functional capacity and vocational profiles. Under Table I, Rule 203.25, Claimant is not disabled for purposes of the Medical Assistance program.

DECISION AND ORDER

The Administrative Law Judge, based upon the above findings of fact and conclusions of law, decides that Claimant is not medically disabled.

Accordingly, the Department's decision is hereby UPHeld.
