MICHIGAN ADMINISTRATIVE HEARING SYSTEM
ADMINISTRATIVE HEARINGS FOR THE DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES

IN THE MATTER OF:

Reg. No.: 2014108
Issue No.: 2009; 4009
Case No.: [REDACTED]
Hearing Date: February 19, 2014
County: Wayne (35)

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE: Alice C. Elkin

HEARING DECISION

Following Claimant's request for a hearing, this matter is before the undersigned Administrative Law Judge pursuant to MCL 400.9 and 400.37; 42 CFR 431.200 to 431.250; and 45 CFR 205.10. After due notice, a telephone hearing was held on February 19, 2014 from Detroit, Michigan. Participants on behalf of Claimant included Claimant and [REDACTED], Claimant's friend and authorized hearing representative (AHR). Participants on behalf of the Department of Human Services (Department) included [REDACTED], Assistance Payment Worker.

During the hearing, Claimant waived the time period for the issuance of this decision, in order to allow for the submission of additional records. The records were received, reviewed, and forwarded to the State Hearing Review Team (SHRT) for consideration. On May 6, 2014, this office received the SHRT determination which found Claimant not disabled. This matter is now before the undersigned for a final determination.

ISSUE

Did the Department properly determine that Claimant was not disabled for purposes of the Medical Assistance (MA-P) and State Disability Assistance (SDA) benefit programs?

FINDINGS OF FACT

The Administrative Law Judge, based on the competent, material, and substantial evidence on the whole record, finds as material fact:

1. On July 11, 2013, Claimant submitted an application for public assistance seeking MA-P and SDA benefits.

2. On August 21, 2013, the Medical Review Team (MRT) found Claimant not disabled.
3. On August 30, 2013, the Department sent Claimant a Notice of Case Action denying the application based on MRT's finding of no disability.
4. On September 19, 2013, the Department received Claimant's timely written request for hearing.
5. On October 30, 2013 and April 24, 2014, the State Hearing Review Team (SHRT) found Claimant not disabled.
6. Claimant alleged mental disabling impairments due to mood disorder.
7. At the time of hearing, Claimant was 46 years old with a [REDACTED] birth date; he was 5'6" in height and weighed 200 pounds.
8. Claimant has a 6th grade education and cannot read or write.
9. Claimant does not have an employment history.
10. Claimant's impairments have lasted, or are expected to last, continuously for a period of 12 months or longer.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Medical Assistance (MA) program is established by the Title XIX of the Social Security Act, 42 USC 1396-1396w-5, and is implemented by 42 CFR 400.200 to 1008.59. The Department of Human Services (formerly known as the Family Independence Agency) administers the MA program pursuant to MCL 400.10 and MCL 400.105.

The State Disability Assistance (SDA) program, which provides financial assistance for disabled persons, was established by 2004 PA 344. The Department administers the SDA program pursuant to MCL 400.10 et seq. and Mich Admin Code, Rules 400.3151 – 400.3180.

Department policies are found in the Department of Human Services Bridges Administrative Manual (BAM), Department of Human Services Bridges Eligibility Manual (BEM), and Department of Human Services Bridges Reference Tables (RFT).

MA-P and SDA benefits are available to disabled individuals. BEM 105 (January 2014), p. 1; BEM 260 (July 2013); BEM 261 (July 2013), p. 1. In order to receive MA benefits based upon disability, Claimant must be disabled as defined in Title XVI of the Social Security Act. 20 CFR 416.901. Disability for MA purposes is defined as the inability to do any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than 12 months. 20 CFR 416.905(a).

In order to determine whether or not an individual is disabled, federal regulations require application of a five-step sequential evaluation process. 20 CFR 416.920(a)(1). The five-step analysis requires the trier of fact to consider (1) whether the individual is engaged in substantial gainful activity; (2) whether the individual's impairment is severe; (3) whether the impairment and its duration meet or equal a listed impairment in Appendix 1 Subpart P of 20 CFR 404; (4) whether the individual has the residual functional capacity to perform past relevant work; and (5) whether the individual has the residual functional capacity and vocational factors (based on age, education and work experience) to adjust to other work. 20 CFR 416.920(a)(4); 20 CFR 416.945.

If an individual is found disabled, or not disabled, at any step, a determination or decision is made with no need evaluate subsequent steps. 20 CFR 416.920(a)(4). If a determination cannot be made that an individual is disabled, or not disabled, at a particular step, the next step is required. 20 CFR 416.920(a)(4)

In general, the individual has the responsibility to establish a disability through the use of competent medical evidence from qualified medical sources such as his or her medical history, clinical/laboratory findings, diagnosis/prescribed treatment, prognosis for recovery and/or medical assessment of ability to do work-related activities or, if a mental disability is alleged, to reason and make appropriate mental adjustments. 20 CFR 416.912(a); 20 CFR 416.913. An individual's subjective pain complaints are not, in and of themselves, sufficient to establish disability. 20 CFR 416.908; 20 CFR 416.929(a) Similarly, conclusory statements by a physician or mental health professional that an individual is disabled or blind, absent supporting medical evidence, is insufficient to establish disability. 20 CFR 416.927(d).

Step One

As outlined above, the first step in determining whether an individual is disabled requires consideration of the individual's current work activity. 20 CFR 416.920(a)(4)(i). If an individual is working and the work is substantial gainful activity (SGA), then the individual must be considered as not disabled, regardless of medical condition, age, education, or work experience. 20 CFR 416.920(b); 20 CFR 416.971. SGA means work that involves doing significant and productive physical or mental duties and that is done, or intended to be done, for pay or profit. 20 CFR 416.972.

In this case, Claimant has not engaged in SGA activity during the period for which assistance might be available. Therefore, Claimant is not ineligible under step 1 and the analysis continues to step 2.

Step Two

Under step 2, the severity of an individual's alleged impairment(s) is considered. If the individual does not have a severe medically determinable physical or mental impairment that meets the duration requirement, or a combination of impairments that is severe and meets the duration requirement, the individual is not disabled. 20 CFR 416.920(a)(4)(ii). The duration requirement means that the impairment is expected to result in death or has lasted, or is expected to last, for a continuous period of at least 12 months. 20 CFR 416.922.

An impairment, or combination of impairments, is severe if it significantly limits an individual's physical or mental ability to do basic work activities regardless of age, education and work experience. 20 CFR 416.920(a)(4)(ii); 20 CFR 416.920(c). An impairment, or combination of impairments, is not severe if it does not significantly limit an individual's physical or mental ability to do basic work activities. 20 CFR 416.921(a); see also Salmi v Sec of Health and Human Services, 774 F2d 685, 692 (CA 6, 1985). Basic work activities means the abilities and aptitudes necessary to do most jobs. 20 CFR 416.921(b). Examples include (i) physical functions such as walking, standing, sitting, lifting, pushing, pulling, reaching, carrying, or handling; (ii) the capacity to see, hear, and speak; (iii) the ability to understand, carry out, and remember simple instructions; (iv) use of judgment; (v) responding appropriately to supervision, co-workers and usual work situations; and (vi) dealing with changes in a routine work setting. CFR 416.921(b).

The individual bears the burden to present sufficient objective medical evidence to substantiate the alleged disabling impairments. A disability claim obviously lacking in medical merit may be dismissed. Higgs v Bowen, 880 F2d 860, 862 (CA 6, 1988). The severity requirement may be employed as an administrative convenience to screen out claims that are totally groundless solely from a medical standpoint. Id. at 863 citing Farris v Sec of Health and Human Services, 773 F2d 85, 90 n.1 (CA 6, 1985). However, under the de minimus standard applied at step 2, an impairment is not severe only if it is a slight abnormality that minimally affects work ability regardless of age, education and experience. Higgs at 862.

As previously noted, Claimant bears the burden to present sufficient objective medical evidence to substantiate the alleged disabling impairment(s). In the present case, Claimant alleges physical disability due to his mental condition. Claimant was initially diagnosed as having a mood disorder, but the diagnosis was later changed to paranoid schizophrenia.

On May 10, 2013, Claimant participated in a psychiatric evaluation. The evaluation indicated that Claimant reported a history of paranoid schizophrenia and that he did not trust anyone in his life. He also reported auditory hallucinations in the form of “buzzing” that made him unable to concentrate. He reported that voices had told him to jump in front of buses but he did not listen to them; he had, however, jumped out of a window in the past in response to the voices. He informed the doctor that he smoked marijuana and drank alcohol.

In evaluating Claimant, the doctor noted that he (i) was oriented to time, place and situation; (ii) had intact memory; (iii) was alert but did not maintain eye contact; (iv) had normal concentration; (v) had fair judgment; (vi) had unremarkable content of thought; (vii) had a peculiar thought process, noting that statements he made that he did not trust anyone were inconsistent with the fact that he was willing to perform errands for others and to allow someone he had known for 4 months to completely manage his care; (viii) had a delayed response and slowed stream of mental activity; (ix) had unremarkable characteristics of speech, noting that he had one word responses to most questions; (x) had an embarrassed presentation during the interview; and (xi) presented an anxious and suggestible affect. The doctor also noted that Claimant had no suicidal or homicidal thoughts, urges, plans or attempts. He noted that Claimant’s inconsistencies in recall could reflect impaired cognitive abilities but that, upon preliminary screen, his memory was intact and cognitive testing would be performed in the future to assess for possible deficits in executive function since Claimant was a poor historian. However, he directly responded to questions asked, reflecting that his thought process was intact.

The doctor diagnosed Claimant with a reading disorder and mood disorder. This global assessment functioning (GAF) score on the date of the evaluation was 50. His prognosis was guarded. He was deemed able to handle his own funds.

In a September 23, 2013 psychiatric progress note, the doctor indicated that Claimant had returned for reevaluation with his caregiver who reported that he was better on medication and without medication he would not even speak. She also reported he had low energy, low motivation and lacked interest in his hygiene. Claimant had been prescribed Risperdal. The doctor diagnosed Claimant with active schizophrenia, paranoid type and noted his problems with education, primary support group and other psychosocial and environmental problems.

On February 20, 2014, Claimant’s doctor completed a psychiatric/psychological examination report (DHS-49D) and a mental residual functional capacity assessment (DHS-49E) (although the documents indicate they were completed on February 20, 2013, the forms were sent to the doctor on February 19, 2014 and the 2013 signature date is clearly a clerical error). Claimant was cooperative, talked and answered questions appropriately and was well-dressed and appropriately groomed. He was alert and oriented, had intact memory, fair judgment and content of thought, slow stream of mental activity and buzzing hallucinations. The doctor noted that Claimant was accompanied by his caregiver and his ability to perform activities of daily living was limited.

On the mental residual functional capacity assessment completed on February 20, 2014, the doctor identified Claimant as markedly limited in (i) the ability to remember locations and work-like procedures, (ii) the ability to understand and remember one or two-step instructions, (iii) the ability to understand and remember detailed instructions, (iv) the ability to carry out simple, one [or] two-step instructions, (v) the ability to carry out detailed instructions, (vi) the ability to sustain an ordinary routine without supervision; (vii) the ability to complete a normal workday and worksheet without interruptions from psychologically based symptoms and to perform at a consistent pace without an unreasonable number and length of rest periods; (viii) the ability to travel in unfamiliar places or use public transportation; and (ix) the ability to set realistic goals or make plans independently of others.

The doctor identified Claimant as moderately limited in (i) the ability to maintain attention and concentration for extended periods, (ii) the ability to perform activities within a schedule, maintain regular attendance, and be punctual within customary tolerances, (iii) the ability to work in coordination with or proximity to others without being distracted by them, (iv) the ability to make simple work-related decisions, (v) the ability to interact appropriately with the general public, (vi) the ability to ask simple questions or request assistance, (vii) the ability to maintain socially appropriate behavior and to adhere to basic standards of neatness and cleanliness, and (viii) the ability to respond appropriately to change in the work setting.

The doctor identified Claimant as not significantly limited only with respect (i) the ability to accept instructions and respond appropriately to criticism from supervisors, (ii) the ability to get along with co-workers or peers without distracting them or exhibiting behavioral extremes, and (iii) the ability to be aware of normal hazards and take appropriate precautions

As summarized above, Claimant has presented medical evidence establishing that he does have some mental limitations on his ability to perform basic work activities. In consideration of the de minimis standard necessary to establish a severe impairment under step 2, the foregoing medical evidence is sufficient to establish that Claimant suffers from severe impairments as a result of his mental condition that have lasted or are expected to last for a continuous period of not less than 12 months. Therefore, Claimant has satisfied the requirements under step 2, and the analysis will proceed to step 3.

Step Three

Step 3 of the sequential analysis of a disability claim requires a determination if the individual's impairment, or combination of impairments, is listed in Appendix 1 of Subpart P of 20 CFR, Part 404. 20 CFR 416.920(a)(4)(iii). If an individual's impairment, or combination of impairments, is of a severity to meet or medically equal the criteria of a listing and meets the duration requirement (20 CFR 416.909), the individual is disabled. If not, the analysis proceeds to the next step.

Based on the objective medical evidence presented of the diagnosed mental disorders of mood disorder and paranoid schizophrenia, Listing 12.00, which encompasses adult mental disorders, particularly Listing 12.03 (schizophrenic, paranoid and other psychotic disorders) and Listing 12.08 (personality disorders). Claimant's condition does not evidence the degree of severity necessary to meet any of the considered listing or their medical equivalent. The disability analysis therefore proceeds to Step 4.

Residual Functional Capacity

If an individual's impairment does not meet or equal a listed impairment under step 3, before proceeding to step 4, the individual's residual functional capacity (RFC) is assessed. 20 CFR 416.920(a)(4); 20 CFR 416.945. Impairments, and any related symptoms, may cause physical and mental limitations that affect what a person can do in a work setting. 20 CFR 416.945(a)(1). RFC is the most an individual can do, based on all relevant evidence, despite the limitations from the impairment(s) and takes into consideration an individual's ability to meet the physical, mental, sensory and other requirements of work. 20 CFR 416.945(a)(1), (4). The total limiting effects of all impairments, including those that are not severe, are considered. 20 CFR 416.945(e). If a client's mental impairment does not meet or is not equivalent in severity to the criteria of a listing, the client's RFC to do SGA is considered. Listing 12.00A.

RFC is assessed based on all relevant medical and other evidence such as statements provided by medical sources, whether or not they are addressed on formal medical examinations, and descriptions and observations of the limitations from impairment(s) provided by the individual or other persons. 20 CFR 416.945(a)(3). This includes consideration of (1) the location/duration/frequency/intensity of an applicant's pain; (2) the type/dosage/effectiveness/side effects of any medication the applicants takes to relieve pain; (3) any treatment other than pain medication that the applicant has received to relieve pain; and (4) the effect of the applicant's pain on his or her ability to do basic work activities. 20 CFR 416.929(c)(3). The applicant's pain must be assessed to determine the extent of his or her functional limitation(s) in light of the objective medical evidence presented. 20 CFR 416.929(c)(2).

Limitations can be exertional, non-exertional, or a combination of both. 20 CFR 416.969a. If the limitations and restrictions imposed by the individual's impairment(s) and related symptoms, such as pain, affect only the ability to meet the strength demands of jobs (i.e., sitting, standing, walking, lifting, carrying, pushing, and pulling), the individual is considered to have only exertional limitations. 20 CFR 416.969a(b). If an individual has limitations or restrictions that affect the ability to meet demands of jobs other than strength, or exertional, demands (i.e. sitting, standing, walking, lifting, carrying, pushing, or pulling), the individual is considered to have only non-exertional limitations or restrictions. 20 CFR 416.969a(a) and (c). Examples of non-exertional limitations or restrictions include difficulty functioning due to nervousness, anxiousness, or depression; difficulty maintaining attention or concentration; difficulty understanding or remembering detailed instructions; difficulty in seeing or hearing; difficulty tolerating some physical feature(s) of certain work settings (i.e., can't tolerate dust or fumes); or difficulty performing the manipulative or postural functions of some work such as reaching, handling, stooping, climbing, crawling, or crouching. 20 CFR 416.969a(c)(1)(i) – (vi). If the impairment(s) and related symptoms, such as pain, only affect the ability to perform the non-exertional aspects of work-related activities, the rules in Appendix 2 do not direct factual conclusions of disabled or not disabled. 20 CFR 416.969a(c)(2).

For mental impairments, functional limitation(s) is assessed based upon the extent to which the impairment(s) interferes with an individual's ability to function independently, appropriately, effectively, and on a sustained basis. Id.; 20 CFR 416.920a(c)(2). Chronic mental disorders, structured settings, medication, and other treatment and the effect on the overall degree of functionality are considered. 20 CFR 416.920a(c)(1). In addition, four broad functional areas (activities of daily living; social functioning; concentration, persistence or pace; and episodes of decompensation) are considered when determining an individual's degree of mental functional limitation. 20 CFR 416.920a(c)(3). The degree of limitation for the first three functional areas is rated by a five point scale: none, mild, moderate, marked, and extreme. 20 CFR 416.920a(c)(4). A four point scale (none, one or two, three, four or more) is used to rate the degree of limitation in the fourth functional area. Id. The last point on each scale represents a degree of limitation that is incompatible with the ability to do any gainful activity. Id.

In this case, Claimant suffers from paranoid schizophrenia and mood disorder. Claimant was accompanied by his AHR to the hearing. The AHR expressed surprise that Claimant spoke and responded to questions on the record, indicating that Claimant was often silent. She added that Claimant was withdrawn, that he had to be watched continuously, that until he was prescribed sleeping pills he would be disruptive during the night, and that he would not bathe regularly unless his mother made him. Claimant testified that he lives with his mother. He does not use the stove or microwave. He testified that he had no drivers' license, did not drive, and could not read traffic signs. He got on a bus once and got lost; the AHR added that the police had to accompany him back home. Claimant repeatedly stated that he did not trust anyone; that "they pick on me." He testified that when he was not on medication, he heard voices telling him to do "bad things." He added that he once jumped out a window in response to the voices. He also hears a ringing in his ear and has poor concentration and memory. He testified that he could not read and was able to write only his name. Claimant's speech during the hearing was awkward.

Ultimately, after review of the entire record to include Claimant's medical evidence and testimony, it is found that Claimant's mental conditions results in an RFC of marked limitations in his activities of daily living, concentration and pace, and adaption and moderate limitation in social interaction. Claimant's RFC is considered at both steps four and five. 20 CFR 416.920(a)(4), (f) and (g).

Step Four

The fourth step in analyzing a disability claim requires an assessment of Claimant's RFC and past relevant employment. 20 CFR 416.920(a)(4)(iv). Past relevant work is work that has been performed within the past 15 years that was a substantial gainful activity and that lasted long enough for the individual to learn the position. 20 CFR 416.960(b)(1). An individual who has the RFC to meet the physical and mental demands of work done in the past is not disabled. Id.; 20 CFR 416.960(b)(3); 20 CFR 416.920. Vocational factors of age, education, and work experience, and whether the past relevant employment exists in significant numbers in the national economy are not considered. 20 CFR 416.960(b)(3).

Claimant has no history past relevant work that was substantial gainful employment. Accordingly, the Claimant cannot be found disabled, or not disabled, at step 4 and the assessment continues to step 5.

Step 5

In step 5, an assessment of Claimant's RFC and age, education, and work experience is considered to determine whether an adjustment to other work can be made. 20 CFR 416.920(4)(v). At this point in the analysis, the burden shifts from Claimant to the Department to present proof that Claimant has the RFC to obtain and maintain substantial gainful employment. 20 CFR 416.960(2); Richardson v Sec of Health and Human Services, 735 F2d 962, 964 (CA 6, 1984). While a vocational expert is not required, a finding supported by substantial evidence that the individual has the vocational qualifications to perform specific jobs is needed to meet the burden. O'Banner v Sec of Health and Human Services, 587 F2d 321, 323 (CA 6, 1978). Medical-Vocational guidelines found at 20 CFR Subpart P, Appendix II, may be used to satisfy the burden of proving that the individual can perform specific jobs in the national economy. Heckler v Campbell, 461 US 458, 467 (1983); Kirk v Secretary, 667 F2d 524, 529 (CA 6, 1981) cert den 461 US 957 (1983). The age for younger individuals (under 50) generally will not seriously affect the ability to adjust to other work. 20 CFR 416.963(c). If the individual can adjust to other work, then there is no disability. Disability is found if an individual is unable to adjust to other work. Id.

In this case, Claimant's mental RFC showing primarily marked and moderate limitations in his ability to function; coupled with his 6th grade education and inability to read and write, seriously affect Claimant's ability to adjust to other work. Accordingly, Claimant is found disabled at Step 5. Although there were some references in the record indicating substance use by Claimant, such use was not material to the disabilities alleged and does not affect the conclusion that Claimant is disabled.

A person is considered disabled for SDA purposes if the person has a physical or mental impairment which meets federal Supplemental Security Income (SSI) disability standards for at least ninety days. Receipt of SSI benefits based on disability or blindness, or the receipt of MA benefits based on disability or blindness, automatically qualifies an individual as disabled for purposes of the SDA program. BEM 261 (July 2013), p. 2.

In this case, Claimant is found disabled for purposes of the MA-P program and, therefore, disabled for purposes of SDA benefit program.

DECISION AND ORDER

The Administrative Law Judge, based on the above findings of fact and conclusions of law, finds Claimant disabled for purposes of the MA-P and SDA benefit programs.

Accordingly, the Department's determination is REVERSED.

THE DEPARTMENT IS ORDERED TO BEGIN DOING THE FOLLOWING, IN ACCORDANCE WITH DEPARTMENT POLICY AND CONSISTENT WITH THIS HEARING DECISION, WITHIN 10 DAYS OF THE DATE OF MAILING OF THIS DECISION AND ORDER:

1. Process Claimant's July 11, 2013, MA-P and SDA application to determine if all the other non-medical criteria are satisfied and notify Claimant and the AHR of its determination;
2. Supplement Claimant for lost benefits, if any, that Claimant was entitled to receive if otherwise eligible and qualified;
3. Review Claimant's continued eligibility in June 2015.
